

Board Favors Amended Form In Annex Bid

Pickaway County's Board of Commissioners yesterday tentatively accepted an amended petition calling for annexation of land to the Village of Ashville.

The amended petition will delete six lots from the original proposal. Commission Chairman Lloyd Melvin said the amended version acceptance will hinge on receipt of a resolution that denotes the change.

An amended petition and related resolution is being prepared by David Kraft, Ashville solicitor. The Commission is expected to act on the new proposal within the next few days.

THE DELETED lots are on the southeast side of the annexation tract. The area comprises about 2½ acres, according to the annexation map.

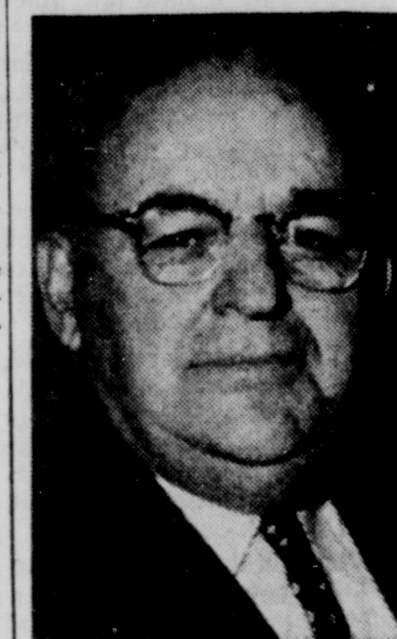

The area supposedly to be approved includes the Teays Valley School site. Annexation approval was granted earlier by the district's board of education.

The annexation area generally is bounded by State Route 752 on the north, Lockbourne Eastern Road on the east, Center Alley on the west and the Ashville Corporation on the south.

According to sponsors of the annexation bid, the area includes about 120 acres north-east of the village.

Former Clerk J. H. Mowery Dead at 75

JAMES H. MOWERY

Mr. James H. Mowery, 122 S. Pickaway St., died 6:40 a. m. today in Berger Hospital. He had been in failing health for several months.

Mr. Mowery, 75, had served as Clerk of Common Pleas Court for the past 12 years. He retired Jan. 1.

A native Pickaway Countyman, he was a member of Trinity Lutheran Church, a graduate of Tarlton High School and Bliss Business College. He was a farmer and had served as superintendent of the Pickaway County Home prior to seeking election as Clerk of Courts.

He was also an appraiser for the Columbus Production Credit Assn., and a former Circleville Twp. trustee.

Mr. Mowery was born April 2, 1889, in Tarlton, the son of Henry and Isabel Odaffer Mowery.

HE IS survived by his widow, Fannie Dresbach Mowery; two sons, Galen, Route 3, and James S., Lancaster; and one grandson, James S. Mowery, Jr.

Mr. Mowery was the last of his generation. Services will be 2:30 p. m. Friday at the Trinity Lutheran Church with the Rev. Carl Zehner officiating. Burial will be in Hillier-Ludwig Cemetery.

Friends may call at the Deffenbaugh Funeral Home beginning 4 p. m. Wednesday.

Ohio Auto Wreckers Lose Round

SPRINGFIELD, Ohio (AP)—Ohio's auto wrecking firms have lost a round in their battle against a new state law which requires, among other things, fencing of auto graveyards to cut them off from the view of motorists.

An association of Clark County wrecking firms was denied an injunction against enforcement of the law Monday. They had asked for the temporary restraining last Dec. 22 pending final determination of action challenging the constitutionality of the law.

They charge the state law is based "solely on esthetic considerations, is an unconstitutional exercise of police power and has no substantial relation to the public health, safety, morals or general welfare."

Common Pleas Court Judge Ben J. Goldman, in denying the injunction, said there seems to be no urgency of imminent danger of the plaintiffs' rights being violated. He reserved the right to grant the order at any time during litigation of the case "should it appear their rights might be violated."

DENVER, Colo. (AP)—Three men dropped in at the Mayan Theater to catch the late show Monday night.

Each paid the one-dollar admission fee.

Shortly after they were inside the theater, reported manager Bill Marx, 28, two of them pulled out pistols. Then the men forced their way into the office and robbed Marx.

They escaped with three one-dollar bills.

Rhodes Bares Spending Program, Says State Is Vigorous, Healthy

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—While a packed gallery and a statewide television audience watched, Gov. James A. Rhodes carefully unfolded a spending program he termed "a program for the future."

The governor waved to his wife and family as he mounted the podium to address a joint session of the Legislature Monday night. Then, reading from two prompting devices, he followed his text to the letter as he outlined a record state budget for the next two years.

Ohio's general condition, Rhodes reported, is one of "vigor and health." Two years ago, he said, he promised to restore "fiscal integrity" to the state government. Now, he said, "Ohio has moved from the shadow of bankruptcy to a new place in the sun" and his budget aim was "to look to the future."

To that end, Rhodes outlined record spending for education, "one of the major tools for total economic development." He allocated $798.2 million—55 per cent of the total $1.4 billion general fund budget—to education.

Sixty-six per cent of the $200 million increase in the general fund budget, he said, goes for education, including $200 a year pay raises for school teachers and a $60 million program "to end chronic classroom shortages in districts which cannot afford to provide the needed classrooms from their own resources."

Rhodes tied his budget in with his overall philosophy of economic development for Ohio. He also plugged for passage of a $290 million state bond issue May 4 "to finish catching up with urgent capital needs" in education and other fields.

Rhodes said the additional funds included in his budget came from economic growth prompted in part by his stand against new or increased taxes. He also called for voter approval of an industrial financing proposal, House of Representatives reapportionment and provision for state-guaranteed loans to college students on that ballot.

Rhodes didn't mention it in his speech, but the budget includes $20 million—1.4 per cent of the total—for bond issue financing.

Health, Welfare and related programs get 34.7 per cent or $503 million and general government gets 8.8 per cent of $127 million.

Rhodes talk was interrupted five times by applause from the legislators and galleries. He received a standing ovation at the end.

Super Rocket Performs Job Flawlessly

Pegasus Spreads 96-Foot Wings To Detect Meteorites

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)—A Saturn 1 super rocket, performing flawlessly, hurled a "space bird" satellite into orbit today to measure meteorites.

The space traveler's assignment was to measure and count the impacts with space debris and report back with electronic "squawks."

Soon after the launching work came from tracking stations that the satellite had unfolded its broad wings as planned, setting up a target to take and record the blows.

Personnel at the station on Antigua Island watched on a closed circuit space television network as that took place high above the Atlantic some 2,000 miles southeast of Cape Kennedy. Space agency officials said a camera mounted on the rocket's second stage provided clear pictures of the deployment.

With its broad wings, wider than those of a four-engine airliner—Pegasus is the third largest satellite ever launched. The space agency said it would be visible at night in areas over which it passed. Only the Echo 1 and 2 communications balloons are larger, with diameters of 100 and 135 feet respectively.

It was the eighth success in a row for the big booster on which the United States counts for major manned space ventures.

The huge rocket blasted off at 9:37 a. m. with the satellite folded in its nose.

Eleven minutes later, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration reported that the rocket had done everything expected of it and had drilled into orbit. An announcement said a shroud covering the payload had been jettisoned.

The radio report on the count, direction and force of the impacts is to help determine the threat these fast-moving bits of space debris pose to lengthy manned space missions.

The giant two-stage Saturn 1, believed to be the most powerful rocket in the world, blazed away from Cape Kennedy at 9:37 a. m. on the 1.5 million pounds of thrust generated by its first-stage powerplant, a cluster of eight engines.

About 15 seconds after launching the 19-story tall booster gradually turned into a southeast heading, spewing a tail of fire more than 300 feet long across a clear sky. Three minutes after launching, the flight control center reported that the second stage had separated and ignited as planned.

Folded in the nose of the rocket was its unique payload, officially named Pegasus after the

Soviet Chief Demands U.S. Quit Viet Nam

MOSCOW (AP)—Premier Alexei N. Kosygin demanded a full American retreat from South Viet Nam in his first public statement since returning from Communist North Viet Nam and Red China.

Kosygin returned Monday from an 11-day trip to the Far East which included a visit to Hanoi, capital of North Viet Nam. He went immediately into a meeting with Soviet Communist party leader Leonid I. Brezhnev.

Kosygin's statement appeared today on the front page of the Soviet government paper Izvestia.

It came in a message to a conference in Cambodia. Izvestia carried the full text, indicating that the message could be taken as Soviet government policy.

The message contained the same strong anti-American remarks Kosygin used in North Korea during his Asian tour. It indicated there had been no immediate change in the Soviet policy line on Viet Nam since Kosygin's return.

Bicycle Safety Accelerated Here

Steps to accelerate bicycle safety in Circleville were placed on the planning board during a meeting conducted here last night.

Fourteen members of the local Bicycle Safety Committee met at Circleville High School to outline projects and foster new ideas calling for added protection to young bike riders. High on the list was a rundown on a new bicycle ordinance that will be submitted to City Council tonight.

The ordinance, outlined by Police Chief Robert Temple, will set certain standards, inspection and registration for bicycles. Citations will be issued for violations and copies will be forwarded to parents of the bike riders and to the juvenile court.

Chief Temple said tentative dates for bicycle inspections are April 10 and 24. No bikes are to be registered unless they pass police inspection.

IT WAS announced that Traffic Safety Guides will be made available to all young riders. State Highway Patrolman P.J. Ranck will handle distribution of the literature, acquired from the Columbus Automobile Club.

Committee spokesmen reminded that May will be observed as Bicycle Safety Month.

Chief Temple said bicycle safety measures will be further promoted in conjunction with National Police Week May 8-15. He suggested a project in which a local youngster will be recognized for exercising outstanding bicycle safety procedures.

Taking part in last night's session were representatives from juvenile court, sheriff and police departments, state patrol, Kiwanis Club, Boy and Girl Scouts, local public and parochial schools, the local Hot Rod Club and officers of the Bicycle Safety Committee.

A list of requirements, as provided by the bike ordinance, is currently being studied. Locations for the actual bicycle inspections on April 10 and 24 will be announced later.

Another Red China Nuclear Test Hinted

WASHINGTON (AP)—A State Department spokesman said today the United States "has reason to believe that Communist China is preparing for another nuclear test."

Press officer Robert J. McCloskey said it was assumed that the second explosion would make use of information which the Reds gained in their first test last Oct. 16.

McCloskey said that insofar as military significance is concerned, the prospective second explosion "would appear as of now to have no more significance than the first one."

Canada Flies New Maple Leaf Flag

OTTAWA (AP)—Canada's new maple leaf flag flew over all its official establishments today, marking its first full day as Canada's national emblem.

The red-and-white flag was hoisted at noon Monday on Parliament Hill, in provincial capitals and at Canadian missions and ships throughout the world.

The old red ensign with the British Union Jack in the upper left corner was hauled down.

More than 10,000 cheered as the new flag went up in Ottawa.

Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson and Gov. Gen. Georges P. Vanier appealed for unity under the new banner.

Ohio's Dems Lash Rhodes

Equal TV Time Asked for Reply

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Gov. James A. Rhodes' budget message produced the expected praise of fellow Republicans but brought strong protests from Democrats who demanded equal broadcast time.

Former Democratic Gov. Michael V. Disalle, requested the radio and television stations which carried the address to give him the same amount of time for rebuttal.

Disalle charged that the speech was "political in nature" and asserted much of it was designed to "plug a $290 million bond issue proposal which will appear on the May primary ballot."

At one point in the governor's 32-minute speech, he referred indirectly to Disalle's administration in claiming his own has rescued the state "from the shadow of bankruptcy."

On the Republican side, the message drew the acclaim of Senate Majority Leader Theodore M. Gray, Miami, Lt. Gov. John W. Brown, Medina, and House majority floor leader Robert Reckman, Hamilton.

Senate Democratic leader Frank W. King of Toledo and Rep. A. G. Lancione, House minority leader, said in a prepared statement that "Rhodes' budget 'merely reflects our prediction two years ago that Ohio would have a surplus of some $125 million as of June 30, 1965, as the claimed deficit of $83 million never existed.'"

While Republicans praised the message, none said it produced any surprises.

Lt. Gov. Brown said "it was mostly what I expected. This is something this administration has worked for—a balanced budget and living within our income. It recognizes the reality that the cure for unemployment is employment and that the cure for the uneducated is education."

Reckman said "basically, this carries forward with what the administration tried to do to get the state in good condition."

Elderly Clerk Buffaloes Thug

CHICAGO (AP)—An elderly night clerk gave the would-be holdup man a withering stare when the man asked for money.

"If this is a stickup," asked clerk Michael McLaughlin, 77, "where's your gun?"

McLaughlin told police the man looked at the floor, shuffled his feet and tweaked the 5-foot-5 clerk's cheek.

"You've got a lot of guts, old man," the intruder said as he walked out, without a gun or the money.

McLaughlin notified police Monday and Donald T. Hargadon 26, of Chicago was arrested near the hotel. He was jailed on a charge of attempted robbery.

New Ohio Budget To Take College Direct to Student

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Ohio's new budget reflects an educational philosophy of taking the college to the student rather than the student to the college.

The two-year spending program handed the legislature by Gov. James A. Rhodes Monday night provides more than $15 million for branch campuses and community colleges.

Coupled with recent action by the Board of Regents, it indicates a trend toward providing college educations for more Ohio youngsters, but providing part of that education away from the jammed campuses of state universities.

By 1967, Rhodes promised in his budget message, every county of 80,000 or more "will have state-supported or assisted higher education facilities."

His capital improvements budget allocates $10 million for university branch campuses in Portsmouth, Chillicothe, Zanesville, Ashland, Canton and Belmont County. It provides $3.9 million for Cuyahoga County Community College and $2 million for Lorain County Community College.

These allocations tie in with Regents' action last Thursday recommending that laws governing college admissions be changed so that every Ohio high school graduate does not have to be admitted to the main campus of a state university.

He could, for instance, be required to attend a junior college or university branch for his first two years.

Such a system now operates in California, among other states.

Neither Rhodes nor the Regents has said that this sort of plan is envisioned for Ohio. But the chancellor of the Regents, Dr. John B. Millett, has said that while the board wants every prospective student to have a chance at a college education this "does not mean that any student can be assured of enrolling on a state university campus on a residential basis."

Nat Cole's Death Seen In Advance

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP)—Doctors told Nat King Cole's wife last Friday that the 50-million-record singer was dying, but she kept it a secret from the world—and from him.

Sunday, as the sun shone brightly in Santa Monica, Maria Cole took her husband for an automobile ride.

Half a day later, at 5:30 a. m. Monday, he was dead of cancer.

Doctors said an autopsy showed cancer in all major organs and glands of Cole's body. He was 45.

The singer had been under treatment for lung cancer for months. He took a turn for the worst last week, and doctors at St. John's Hospital learned through tests that cancer had reached his liver.

Cole's body will lie in a closed casket at St. James Episcopal Church, on Wilshire Boulevard in Los Angeles, from 3 to 10 p. m. Wednesday to permit the singer's fans to pay their last respects.

Private funeral services will be held at the church at 11 a. m. Thursday. Entombment will follow at Forest Lawn Memorial Park in nearby Glendale.

Legislative Speedup Seen

Assembly Girds For Rhodes Plan

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Introduction of Gov. James A. Rhodes' appropriations bills is expected to quicken the pace for Ohio's lawmakers who up to now have marked time with a backlog of nearly 300 non-administration measures.

Rhodes' record-high $4.19 billion spending package was unveiled Monday night at a joint session which was carried over a statewide television network.

Much of it had leaked out from various administration sources days ago, however, and it produced little surprise among the legislators.

Hearings are expected to begin soon on Rhodes' three separate appropriations bills which were introduced by Rep. Ralph E. Fisher, R-Wayne, chairman of the House Finance Committee. Under Ohio law, appropriations measures will be introduced in the lower chamber first.

House members stayed on for additional work Monday night after senators returned to their chambers for a brief session. The House passed the first bill to be approved by either chamber at this session which convened five weeks ago.

Rep. Walter E. Powell, R-Butler, authored the measure which would permit school boards to use so-called trimester or four quarter plans to gain additional classroom space.

Under the trimester plan, students would be assigned to two of three semesters and under the four quarter plan, they would attend three of four quarters.

Tre House passed the bill 92-40 after brief debate on questions raised by Rep. Roy J. Gilliland, R-Jackson and Rep. Carl Stokes, D-Cuyahoga. It now goes to the Senate.

Among 14 new bills introduced in the House (bringing the total in that chamber to 207) was a fourth separate appropriations bill to erase a $7.5 million deficit acquired in the current biennium by the State Board of Education.

Sharp Increase In Road Fund Seen

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Ohio would spend nearly $100 million more for highways in the upcoming biennium than it did in the current one under the separate appropriations bill received Monday night in the Ohio House.

The measure calls for a record-breaking allocation of $1.03 billion for the Highway and Highway Safety Departments, compared to $941 million in the 1963-65 biennium.

More than $809 million of the appropriations would go for construction, $193.4 million for highway department operations, and $31.5 million for highway safety, primarily for operation of the State Highway Patrol.

The Public Health Service also reported Monday night that accidents hospitalized about 2 million persons.

Dr. Paul V. Joliet, chief of the Division of Accident Prevention, said the number of accidental deaths was up 3,000 over 1963. Auto accidents claimed 48,000 lives last year, up 5,000.

4 Arrested, Plot To Blow Up Memorials

WASHINGTON (AP) — FBI agents seized four persons today on charges of conspiring to blow up the Washington Monument, the Statue of Liberty and the Liberty Bell.

Agents arrested three Negro men and a white woman from Canada in New York City.

FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover said agents cooperating with New York City police seized a quantity of dynamite and blasting caps buried in a lot in the Bronx. He said the cache was a portion of the explosives being accumulated by the conspirators as part of their plot.

Those arrested were Robert S. Collier, 28; Walter A. Bowe, 32; Khaleel S. Sayeed, 22, and Michelle Duclos 28.

In 1964 Collier, a Boston native, violated State Department regulations by traveling to Cuba with a group under the auspices of a student committee. Hoover said Collier is the self-styled leader of an organization called The Black Liberation Front.

Hoover said Bowe, a judo instructor, is a supporter of the Fair Play for Cuba Committee. Sayeed, who was born in Brooklyn and lives there, is single and attended Howard University's school of engineering in Washington last year.

Hoover said Miss Duclos, who entered this country Monday from Canada, has been employed by one of Quebec province's separatist parties — Rassemblement Pour L'Indépendance Nationale. She lives in Montreal.

Rhodes Bares Spending Program, Says State Is Vigorous, Healthy

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — While a packed gallery and a statewide television audience watched, Gov. James A. Rhodes carefully unfolded a spending program he termed "a program for the future."

The governor waved to his wife and family as he mounted the podium to address a joint session of the Legislature Monday night. Then, reading from two prompting devices, he followed his text to the letter as he outlined a record state budget for the next two years.

To that end, Rhodes outlined record spending for education, "one of the major tools for total economic development." He allocated $798.2 million — 55 per cent of the total $1.4 billion general fund budget—to education.

Sixty-six per cent of the $200 million increase in the general fund budget, he said, goes for education, including $200 a year pay raises for school teachers and a $60 million program "to end chronic classroom shortages in districts which cannot afford to provide the needed classrooms from their own resources."

Rhodes tied his budget in with his overall philosophy of economic development for Ohio. He also plugged for passage of a $290 million state bond issue May 4 "to finish catching up with urgent capital needs" in education and other fields.

Rhodes didn't mention it in his speech, but the budget includes $20 million—1.4 per cent of the total — for bond issue financing.

Health, Welfare and related programs get 34.7 per cent or $503 million and general government gets 8.8 per cent of $127 million.

Rhodes talk was interrupted five times by applause from the legislators and galleries. He received a standing ovation at the end.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Gov. James A. Rhodes' budget message produced the expected praise of fellow Republicans but brought strong protests from Democrats who demanded equal broadcast time.

Former Democratic Gov. Michael V. Disalle, requested the radio and television stations which carried the address to give him the same amount of time for rebuttal.

Disalle charged that the speech was "political in nature" and asserted much of it was designed to plug a $290 million bond issue proposal which will appear on the May primary ballot.

At one point in the governor's 32-minute speech, he referred indirectly to Disalle's administration in claiming his own has rescued the state "from the shadow of bankruptcy."

On the Republican side, the message drew the acclaim of Senate Majority Leader Theodore M. Gray, Miami, Lt. Gov. John W. Brown, Medina, and House majority floor leader Robert Reckman, Hamilton.

Senate Democratic leader Frank W. King of Toledo and Rep. A. G. Lancione, House minority leader, said in a prepared statement that "Rhodes' budget "merely reflects our prediction two years ago that Ohio would have a surplus of some $125 million as of June 30, 1965, as the claimed deficit of $83 million never existed."

While Republicans praised the message, none said it produced any surprises.

Lt. Gov. Brown said "it was mostly what I expected. This is something this administration has worked for — a balanced budget and living within our income. It recognizes the reality that the cure for unemployment is employment and that the cure for the uneducated is education."

Reckman said "basically, this carries forward with what the administration tried to do to get the state in good condition."

Elderly Clerk Buffaloes Thug

CHICAGO (AP) — An elderly night clerk gave the would-be holdup man a withering stare when the man asked for money.

"If this is a stickup," asked clerk Michael McLaughlin, 77, "where's your gun?"

McLaughlin told police the man looked at the floor, shuffled his feet and tweaked the 5-foot-5 clerk's cheek.

"You've got a lot of guts, old man," the intruder said as he walked out, without a gun or the money.

McLaughlin notified police Monday and Donald T. Hargadon 26, of Chicago was arrested near the hotel. He was jailed on a charge of attempted robbery.

New Ohio Budget To Take College Direct to Student

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio's new budget reflects an educational philosophy of taking the college to the student rather than the student to the college.

The two-year spending program handed the legislature by Gov. James A. Rhodes Monday night provides more than $15 million for branch campuses and community colleges.

Coupled with recent action by the Board of Regents, it indicates a trend toward providing college educations for more Ohio youngsters, but providing part of that education away from the jammed campuses of state universities.

By 1967, Rhodes promised in his budget message, every county of 80,000 or more "will have state - supported or assisted higher education facilities."

His capital improvements budget allocates $10 million for university branch campuses in Portsmouth, Chillicothe, Zanesville, Ashtabula, Canton and Belmont County. It provides $3.9 million for Cuyahoga County Community College and $2 million for Lorain County Community College.

These allocations tie in with Regents' action last Thursday recommending that laws governing college admissions be changed so that every Ohio high school graduate does not have to be admitted to the main campus of a state university.

He could, for instance, be required to attend a junior college or university branch for his first two years.

Such a system now operates in California, among other states.

Neither Rhodes nor the Regents has said that this sort of plan is envisioned for Ohio. But the chancellor of the Regents, Dr. John B. Millett, has said that while the board wants every prospective student to have a chance at a college education this "does not mean that any student can be assured of enrolling on a state university campus on a residential basis."

The letter, city police said today, contained Mrs. Huffer's income tax return.

Nat Cole's Death Seen In Advance

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Doctors told Nat King Cole's wife last Friday that the 50-million-record singer was dying, but she kept it a secret from the world — and from him.

Sunday, as the sun shone brightly in Santa Monica, Maria Cole took her husband for an automobile ride.

Half a day later, at 5:30 a. m. Monday, he was dead of cancer. Doctors said an autopsy showed cancer in all major organs and glands of Cole's body. He was 45.

The singer had been under treatment for lung cancer for months. He took a turn for the worst last week, and doctors at St. John's Hospital learned through tests that cancer had reached his liver.

Cole's body will lie in a closed casket at St. James Episcopal Church, on Wilshire Boulevard in Los Angeles, from 3 to 10 p. m. Wednesday to permit the singer's fans to pay their last respects.

Private funeral services will be held at the church at 11 a. m. Thursday. Entombment will follow at Forest Lawn Memorial Park in nearby Glendale.

Legislative Speedup Seen

Assembly Girds For Rhodes Plan

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Introduction of Gov. James A. Rhodes' appropriations bills is expected to quicken the pace for Ohio's lawmakers who up to now have marked time with a backlog of nearly 300 non-administration measures.

Rhodes' record-high $4.19 billion spending package was unveiled Monday night at a joint session which was carried over a statewide television network.

Much of it had leaked out from various administration sources days ago, however, and it produced little surprise among the legislators.

Hearings are expected to begin soon on Rhodes' three separate appropriations bills which were introduced by Rep. Ralph E. Fisher, R-Wayne, chairman of the House Finance Committee. Under Ohio law, appropriations measures was to be introduced in the lower chamber first.

House members stayed on for additional work Monday night after senators returned to their chambers for a brief session. The House passed the first bill to be approved by either chamber at this session which convened five weeks ago.

Rep. Walter E. Powell, R-Butler, authored the measure which would permit school boards to use so-called trimester or four quarter plans to gain additional classroom space.

Under the trimester plan, students would be assigned to two of three semesters and under the four quarter plan, they would attend three of four quarters.

The House passed the bill 92-40 after brief debate on questions raised by Rep. Roy J. Gilliland, R-Jackson and Rep. Carl Stokes, D-Cuyahoga. It now goes to the Senate.

Among 14 new bills introduced in the House (bringing the total in that chamber to 207) was a fourth separate appropriations bill to erase a $7.5 million deficit acquired in the current biennium by the State Board of Education.

Sharp Increase In Road Fund Seen

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Ohio would spend nearly $100 million more for highways in the upcoming biennium than it did in the current one under the separate appropriations bill received Monday night in the Ohio House.

The measure calls for a record-breaking allocation of $1.03 billion for the Highway and Highway Safety Departments, compared to $941 million in the 1963-65 biennium.

More than $800 million of the appropriations would go for construction, $193.4 million for highway department operations, and $31.5 million for highway safety, primarily for operation of the State Highway Patrol.

Super Rocket Performs Job Flawlessly

Pegasus Spreads 96-Foot Wings To Detect Meteorites

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — A Saturn 1 super rocket, performing flawlessly, hurled a "space bird" satellite into orbit today to measure meteorites.

The space traveler's assignment was to measure and count the impacts with space debris and report back with electronic "squawks."

Soon after the launching word came from tracking stations that the satellite had unfolded its broad wings as planned, setting up a target to take and record the blows.

Personnel at the station on Antigua Island watched on a closed circuit space television network as that took place high above the Atlantic some 2,000 miles southeast of Cape Kennedy. Space agency officials said a camera mounted on the rocket's second stage provided clear pictures of the deployment.

With its broad wings, wider than those of a four-engine airliner — Pegasus is the third largest satellite ever launched. The space agency said it would be visible at night in areas over which it passed. Only the Echo 1 and 2 communications balloons are larger, with diameters of 100 and 135 feet respectively.

It was the eighth success in a row for the big booster on which the United States counts for major manned space ventures.

The huge rocket blasted off at 9:37 a. m. with the satellite folded in its nose.

Eleven minutes later, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration reported that the rocket had done everything expected of it and had drilled into orbit. An announcement said a shroud covering the payload had been jettisoned.

The radio report on the count, direction and force of the impacts is to help determine the threat these fast-moving bits of space debris pose to lengthy manned space missions.

The giant two-stage Saturn 1, believed to be the most powerful rocket in the world, blazed away from Cape Kennedy at 9:37 a. m. on the 1.5 million pounds of thrust generated by its first-stage powerplant, a cluster of eight engines.

About 15 seconds after launching the 19-story tall booster gradually turned into a south-east heading, spewing a tail of fire more than 300 feet long across a clear sky. Three minutes after launching, the flight control center reported that the second stage had separated and ignited as planned.

Folded in the nose of the rocket was its unique payload, officially named Pegasus after the

Soviet Chief Demands U.S. Quit Viet Nam

MOSCOW (AP) — Premier Alexei N. Kosygin demanded a full American retreat from South Viet Nam in his first public statement since returning from Communist North Viet Nam and Red China.

Kosygin returned Monday from an 11-day trip to the Far East which included a visit to Hanoi, capital of North Viet Nam. He went immediately into a meeting with Soviet Communist party leader Leonid I. Brezhnev.

Kosygin's statement appeared today on the front page of the Soviet government paper Izvestia.

It came in a message to a conference in Cambodia. Izvestia carried the full text, indicating that the message could be taken as Soviet government policy.

The message contained the same strong anti-American remarks Kosygin used in North Korea luring his Asian tour. It indicated there had been no immediate change in the Soviet policy line on Viet Nam since Kosygin's return.

U.S. Taxpayers Lagging, But Are Not Grumbling

WASHINGTON (AP) — Good sport that he is, the American taxpayer is digging down for that extra tax money without telling his troubles to the Internal Revenue Service.

But, probably because his pocketbook hurts so, he is being slower than usual with his income tax returns.

The reason so many Americans have a bigger bundle of tax trouble this year is under-withholding last year, a by-

False Report Case Sent to Grand Jury

Charles Hammond, 216 W. Mound St., yesterday was bound to the next session of the Pickaway County Grand Jury by Municipal Judge Sterling M. Lamb.

Hammond was charged with giving a false report to Circleville Police and with unlawfully attempting to claim money on an insurance policy.

Hammond claimed his automobile was stolen and then damaged. He entered a plea of guilty to giving a false report and was bound to the jury under $500 bond.

He entered a plea of innocent to the other count. However, Judge Lamb ruled there was sufficient evidence to warrant a grand jury hearing and set bond at $1,000.

The affidavits charging Hammond were filed by Circleville Policeman Larry Pontious.

Deputy Recovers Stolen Car Here

A stolen car was recovered yesterday evening by Pickaway County Deputy Sheriff George Linder.

The car, reportedly stolen by two escapees from the Fairfield School for Boys, was abandoned along Route 22 one-half mile west of Route 277.

Linder was enroute to Fayette County when he discovered the auto. He was dispatched there to assist in apprehending the two juveniles seen near the county line.

The two youths were arrested by Fayette authorities and taken to Fairfield County by Linder.

Youngster Is Cut By Falling Lamp

Evelyn Conrad, 5, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Conrad, 313 South St., was treated in Berger Hospital yesterday after a lamp fell and lacerated her scalp.

Three persons received emergency care and were released.

Alice Clark, 26, Route 2, Amanda, cut her right leg on broken glass in a storm door.

U.S. Taxpayers Lagging, But Are Not Grumbling

WASHINGTON (AP) — Good sport that he is, the American taxpayer is digging down for that extra tax money without telling his troubles to the Internal Revenue Service.

But, probably because his pocketbook hurts so, he is being slower than usual with his income tax returns.

The reason so many Americans have a bigger bundle of tax trouble this year is under-withholding last year, a by-

U.S. Expects Vietnamese To Step Up War Campaign

False Report Case Sent to Grand Jury

Charles Hammond, 216 W. Mound St., yesterday was bound to the next session of the Pickaway County Grand Jury by Municipal Judge Sterling M. Lamb.

Hammond was charged with giving a false report to Circleville Police and with unlawfully attempting to claim money on an insurance policy.

Hammond claimed his automobile was stolen and then damaged. He entered a plea of guilty to giving a false report and was bound to the jury under $500 bond.

He entered a plea of innocent to the other count. However, Judge Lamb ruled there was sufficient evidence to warrant a grand jury hearing and set bond at $1,000.

The affidavits charging Hammond were filed by Circleville Policeman Larry Pontious.

Deputy Recovers Stolen Car Here

A stolen car was recovered yesterday evening by Pickaway County Deputy Sheriff George Linder.

The car, reportedly stolen by two escapees from the Fairfield School for Boys, was abandoned along Route 22 one-half mile west of Route 277.

Linder was enroute to Fayette County when he discovered the auto. He was dispatched there to assist in apprehending the two juveniles seen near the county line.

The two youths were arrested by Fayette authorities and taken to Fairfield County by Linder.

Youngster Is Cut By Falling Lamp

Evelyn Conrad, 5, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Conrad, 313 South St., was treated in Berger Hospital yesterday after a lamp fell and lacerated her scalp. Three persons received emergency care and were released.

Alice Clark, 26, Route 2, Amanda, cut her right leg on broken glass in a storm door.

Chamber Activities Outlined At Kiwanis Club Meeting

Activities, purposes and accomplishments of the Circleville Area Chamber of Commerce were outlined last night during a regular meeting of the local Kiwanis Club.

Defining the Chamber functions was Jack Clifton, president of the organization. He listed primary aims of the Chamber as: 1. boost membership; 2. secure more industry for this community; 3. consolidate gains made in the last four years; 4. boost retail business in Circleville.

Clifton said the Chamber listed 172 members in 1964 and operated under a budget of $6,000. He said a membership of 250 is desired in 1965.

The Chamber head described this community's ideal location flying horse of Greek mythology.

Once in orbit, the nose shroud was to fall away and Pegasus was to extend two wing-like panels to a span of 96 feet. Each wing is 14 feet wide and about an inch thick. The burned-out second stage was to remain attached, giving the craft the appearance of a huge bird swooping through space.

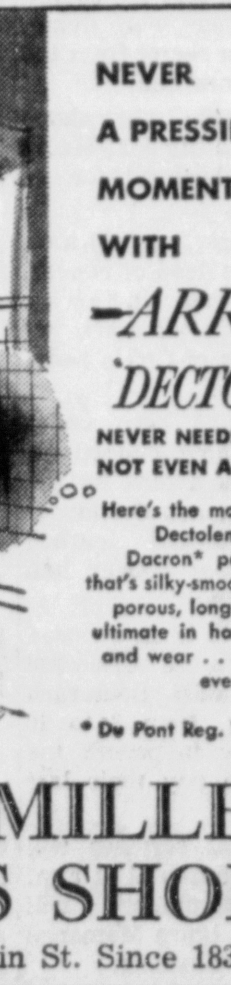

The satellite was a secondary goal of the launching. Its main purpose was to further evaluate the Saturn I, forerunner of the Saturn V rocket which is to take American astronauts to the moon. All tests of the Saturn were successful. The rocket today was the first to carry an operating payload.

Most meteoroids are believed to be pulverized remnants of comets. They come in all sizes, from great multiton chunks down to tiny particles, detected only under a microscope.

The large ones are so rare that their threat to space flight is almost nil. Pieces ranging from the size of a grain of sand to a marble are more plentiful.

So Pegasus was to concentrate on the microscopic particles, which are very plentiful, sometimes moving through space like large dust clouds. Traveling at up to 136,000 miles an hour, these "hot rods" could have a sandblast effect and, ultimately erode the protective coating of a spacecraft. The coating controls spacecraft temperature.

Some experts have theorized from past studies that on a 10-day round-trip to the moon, the three-man Apollo spacecraft could expect to be hit by at least one meteoroid which could puncture the pressurized cabin or harm some other life support system. The particles would be of greater hazard to manned space stations expected to stay aloft for months or years.

Ohio Care of Elderly Under Fire of Probers

CLEVELAND (AP)—The care of Ohio's elderly came under scrutiny of a U. S. Senate subcommittee Monday, with these results:

—Sen. Stephen M. Young, D-Ohio, demanded a case by case accounting of money the state receives from estates of aid for aged clients.

—U. S. Rep. Charles A. Vanik of Cleveland said Ohio is housing its poor, elderly patients in firetraps.

—Dr. Joseph B. Stockien, controller of chronic illnesses for Cuyahoga County, said inspectors from his office had seen residents of one home being fed starvation portions of food.

—Fred Rice, state fire marshal, testified that nursing homes with 30 or less beds are exempt from a state law which requires sprinkler systems.

The subcommittee, under chairman Sen. Frank E. Moss, D-Utah, is investigating long-term care under the Senate's special committee on aging.

The subcommittee held two sessions in Cleveland City Council Chambers and in the next two weeks will hold similar hearings in California and Colorado.

Young asked Clarence Tittle, chief of the division of the aid for aged of the State Welfare Department, to deliver to the subcommittee within 30 days "a complete statement for the last fiscal year."

Tittle said there are now nearly 12,600 persons in nursing homes who receive state aid for the aged help.

The senator wants from Tittle a complete breakdown on the money the state receives under Ohio's lien law. Under the law a destitute person who receives state aid must grant a lien on real estate owned and sign a trust agreement for life insurance policies.

When the person dies, the state is entitled to get back that much money from the estate which it paid out to help the person.

Young told Tittle that "there is a well defined rumor that favoritism is shown in the disposition of assets (of deceased elderly patients)." He did not elaborate.

Vanik said "we are inviting disaster as long as the state pursues disgracefully inadequate policies" concerning fire regulations. "This state invites and subsidizes firetraps for its aged citizens," he said.

One of the nation's worst nursing home fires was at Fitchville, Ohio, where 63 persons lost their lives in November, 1963.

Columbus Motorist Fined $250 by Court for OVI

Robert Vickroy, 22, Columbus, was fined $250 and costs by Municipal Judge Sterling M. Lamb yesterday after the accused entered a plea of guilty to a charge of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of intoxicants.

The judge suspended $100 of the fine and placed Vickroy on probation for three years. He also handed down a three-day jail sentence and ordered that a man's driver's license be suspended for three years.

Robert Jones, 35, Columbus, forfeited a $24 bond posted for failure to maintain an assured clear distance ahead.

Fined $15 and costs for exceeding the speed limit by 15 miles per hour were:

Rhodes Unfolds Spending Plans

Bills to appropriate the funds Rhodes requested—and to implement the college student financing—were introduced in the House shortly before he spoke.

Rhodes said that great strides had been made in higher education. "Our blue print for brainpower is being translated into buildings and equipment," he said. But to finish the work he allocated $303 million for higher education, "the greatest increase in the history of Ohio and $65 million over the current biennium."

Of the total of $997 million for education—from all sources—in the next two years, $693 million would go for primary and secondary education. Part of this would go for new technical and vocational training centers "to prepare unskilled young people for good jobs," Rhodes said.

He said that by 1970, Ohio will have approximately 1,000 new job applicants every week and "we must provide those jobs."

The industrial financing proposal is needed to help, he said, because even though industrial expansion set a record last year, Ohio must compete for such development with 43 other states which now have such financing plans.

Other key proposals contemplate construction of a new prison to replace the antiquated Ohio Penitentiary, expansion of last year's record highway program, improvement of mental recreation and natural resources and revision of public health and welfare programs.

Rhodes tied nearly every expansion of state service into economic growth. New prison programs, for instance, must be "beared to the practical purpose of returning inmates to jobs and family life so that they can hold a constructive place in society," he said.

A six-year $100 million program for development of recreation and resources, he said, "will be repaid over and over again." He estimated additional tourist trade would generate $100 million a year.

Rhodes also promised establishment of new agricultural research centers to boost the state's farm business.

He termed his budget "a program for brighter tomorrow in the journey to first in the nation and more and better jobs for everyone."

The general operating fund budget of $1.44 billion to run the state for the two years starting next July 1 includes $798.2 million for education, 55.1 per cent of the total.

The current two-year general fund total is $1.24 billion, with $664.6 million for education.

Public schools are due for $620.1 million in the next two years, compared with $534.2 currently from general funds. Higher education will receive $178.1 million from the same source, against $130.4 in this biennium.

Of the $200 million increase in general fund appropriations sought, Rhodes said 66.8 per cent of the boost was for education.

The "all expense" budget hit a total of $4.1 billion, up $500 million from the current total of $3.6 billion.

Major appropriations, in addition to education, include $889 million for highways and highway safety, and $185 million for capital improvements.

Bond money boosted the highway total just over the $1 billion mark in the budget prepared by Finance Director Richard Krabach. He explained that some $10 million in the capital improvements total included unspent bond money for reappropriation.

The balance of the budget was made up of revenues going to local governments automatically and a series of "other funds."

Added to direct appropriations from general funds for public schools, Rhodes said $73.5 million in general rotary funds were designated for primary and secondary education.

The combined figures show an increase of $113.3 million over the current biennium, which was $60 million ahead of the previous two-year period, Krabach said.

A breakdown showed an average of $124.90 per pupil in public school subsidies from appropriated funds and $9.60 from royalties for a total of $134.50.

Comparable figures for the next biennium will be $139.50 and $15.50 for a total of $155, a boost of 15 per cent.

Health, mental hygiene and welfare will receive $503.4 million, 34.7 per cent of the new general fund total, compared with about $470 million currently.

An anticipated increase of more than $6 million in medical care for the aged is provided for in the budget. Aid for the disabled and aid to dependent children round out the major areas of improved assistance.

Expansion of the community clinic system, 124 remodeling projects at mental hygiene institutions and advances in adult and youth correction together with parole and probation activities also were cited.

General executive and elective agencies will get $127.3 million in general funds, about 8.8 per cent of the total, for an increase of $12.4 million.

Another $20 million is set aside in the budget for initial expenses if voters approve a proposed $290 million bond issue for capital improvements in the May 4 election. Defeat of the bond issue would make the $20 million available for other purposes, Krabach said.

GE Stock, Savings Plans Benefit City Plant Employees

A payout of about $120 million in General Electric stock and U.S. Savings Bonds began last week for 138,000 investment-minded GE employees.

E. G. Grigg, manager of the Circleville Lamp plant, said GE employees here received more than $125,000 in stocks, bonds and cash.

General Electric, America's fifth largest employer, began in 1948 to help its employees become "card carrying capitalists" by offering them the opportunity to buy stock through company savings plans. More than 150 companies—including General Motors, United States Steel and Standard Oil (New Jersey)—have similar savings plans.

Of the $119.5 million payout, about $110 million in stock and bonds was delivered to participants. The rest, consisting of fractional shares and special retirement accounts, was set aside for later distribution.

The recent mailing included nearly 600,000 shares of stock and more than 1,214,000 savings bonds.

Vice President Virgil B. Day said employees accumulated the securities through payroll deductions under two savings plans to which the company contributes.

One plan, started in 1959, allows personnel to invest up to six per cent of their pay in a combination of savings bonds and company stock. GE adds $1 for each $2 put up by the employee. At the end of a three-year holding period, the employee gets back his own investment and can elect to take the General Electric investment, too, or have it set aside in a retirement fund.

The other plan dates to 1948. It permits employees to invest up to $10 a week in savings bonds. At the end of a five-year holding period, the employee gets his bonds plus a bonus of GE stock worth 15 per cent of the cost of the bonds.

The 1959 plan has nearly 112,000 members, about 80 per cent of those eligible to join. The earlier plan has more than 47,000 members. Both plans are voluntary, but employees may participate in only one.

According to Vice President Day, these plans have helped more than 100,000 employees to become General Electric share owners since 1959.

All told, he said, about one-third of General Electric's 520,000 share owners of record acquired stock under such a plan and well over half the company's 260,000 employees now own General Electric stock. Day said it was "healthy and encouraging to see so many employees have elected to become owners of company stock."

"The fact that many employees are planning to use their invested savings for long-term opportunities—education for their children, for instance—should be good news for the economy in general," he added.

"We've learned that their intentions are in keeping with the long-range benefits conceived by these programs. We're delighted at the help these plans have provided and at the way General Electric men and women have responded to the opportunity."

Pair of Drunks Credited For Nat Cole's Singing

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP)—Friends of Nat (King) Cole, who died here Monday at 45 after having undergone lung surgery three weeks ago, credit a couple of drunks for having turned the one-time pianist into a popular vocalist.

Cole's rise to the pinnacle of success had in it the elements of a bad Hollywood movie: the rags to riches, obscurity to fame plot. But it was true.

Born March 17, 1919, in Alabama to a Baptist preacher and a musically-inclined mother, Nathaniel Adams Coles was raised in Chicago, where his father was minister of the First Baptist church.

Young Nat took to music early, picking out "Yes, We Have No Bananas" on the church piano at the age of 4. As he grew older he played the piano and organ for church services.

Cole came to Long Beach, Calif., in 1937 with a dying review, "Shuffle Along." He was 18, and decided to stay in California. He dropped the final "s" from his name and began tickling voices in dives for $5 a night or less.

It was in such a dive that a soggy barfly one night jammed a paper crown on the young pianist's head and burbled, "Look, King Cole!" The nickname stuck and Nat (King) Cole was on his way.

Late in 1937, Cole organized the King Cole Swingsters—with Nat at the piano, Oscar Moore on guitar and Wesley Prince on string bass. Jazz aficionados fell for the trio; but some complained of their lack of a vocalist, until one night at Los Angeles' Swanee Inn, when another elbow bender gave Cole's guiding star a wozy nudge.

Wobbling up to the piano, the man commanded: "Sing 'Sweet Lorraine!'"

"We don't sing," Nat said gently.

"Sing!" the man bellowed.

The manager ran up, sized up the situation and told Cole: "Sing. This guy's a big spender. Sometimes three bucks a night."

Cole sang "Sweet Lorraine." He sang from then on.

In 1943 Cole contracted with Capitol Records (then Liberty Records) for "Straighten Up and Fly Right," which he'd written years before for $50 to pay the rent. The disc was a smash hit and Capitol knew it had Cole's work cut out for him.

In 1947, he married pretty Maria Ellington, a vocalist with Duke Ellington (no relation), in a big Harlem wedding. Their honeymoon was financed by the immense sale of another Cole song, "Nature Boy."

Despite Fancy Names, Viet Nam Conflict Said Just Plain War

NEW YORK (AP)—"The time has come to call a spade a bloody shovel. This country is in an undeclared and unexplained war in Viet Nam. Our leaders have a lot of fancy names for it, like escalator and retaliation, but it is war just the same."

So declares James (Scotty) Reston, associate editor and two-time Pulitzer Prize winner of the New York Times. The stand-out correspondent continues:

The cause of the war is plain enough. The North Vietnamese Communists, with the aid of Red China and to a lesser extent the Soviet Union, have sent their guerrillas in South Viet Nam in violation of the 1954 and 1962 Geneva agreements, for the express purpose of taking over the government and territory of South Viet Nam.

The course of the war is equally plain. We were getting licked in South Viet Nam. The Communists were steadily defeating the South Vietnamese armed forces, terrorizing a war-weary and indifferent population and taking advantage of a divided and quarrelsome South Vietnamese government.

More than that, the Communists were stepping up their attacks on the bases and barracks which serve the 23,000 American troops in South Viet Nam, and it was in response to this that President Johnson ordered the bombing attacks on the Communist military installations in the south of North Vietnamese territory.

Very few people here question the necessity for a limited expansion of the war by U.S. bombers into Communist territory. The American and South Vietnamese position was crumbling fast, and the political and strategic consequences of defeat would have been serious for the free world all over Asia.

There is a point, however, where this exercise will become critical. As the military targets in the southern part of Communist Viet Nam are knocked out, and our bombers move northward, they will soon come within the range of the North Vietnamese and Red Chinese MIG fighters, and if we get into that situation, the pressure for attacks on the air bases in North

Viet Nam and South China will steeply increase.

The immediate problem, therefore, is how to put enough pressure on the North Vietnamese to bring them into negotiations for a settlement of the war, without provoking a mass Communist counterattack we are in no position to meet.

This is a delicate and highly dangerous situation. The United States has the air and naval power to wipe out North Viet Nam and the Chinese air force, if it comes into the battle. But the North Vietnamese have a quarter of a million men under arms who have never been committed to the battle at all, and few observes in Washington believe this force could be stopped without the intervention of a very large American army on the ground.

Nobody has made all this clear to the American people. President Johnson has not made a major speech on the details of this war since he entered the White House. Neither did President Kennedy. We have had one long speech on the subject by Secretary of Defense McNamara on March 26 of last year, and a lot of statements here and in Saigon, many of them highly optimistic and misleading. But the fact is that we are in a war that is not only undeclared and unexplained but that has not even been widely debated in the Congress or the country.

The whole history of this century testifies to the difficulty of predicting the consequences of war. We imposed a policy of unconditional surrender on the Kaiser only to find that the two greater menaces of Communism and Nazism took his place. One of the main objectives of the two world wars was the freedom of Eastern Europe, which ended up with less freedom under the Communists than it had before.

Few people here question that

President Johnson wants to limit the war in Viet Nam and avoid a ground war on the continent of Asia, but the future is not wholly in his control. He may be bombing merely to force a negotiated settlement, but the Chinese and the North Vietnamese don't know that. In fact, neither do the American people, whose airmen are carrying out the President's orders.

Nor for that matter, do the allies, who are treaty-bound to support us if we get into a larger war in Southeast Asia. They will undoubtedly support a policy of limited retaliation in North Viet Nam if it is for the purpose of negotiating a settlement, but they will not support us for long unless we define and limit our aims.

The implications of this war, then, extend far beyond Viet Nam. President Johnson's hopes of building a strong alliance with Japan and the other free nations of Asia are not likely to be promoted by replaying the old script of American planes once more bombing Asians.

He has started on a massive program of reconstruction and development at home, but he can forget about his Great Society if he gets bogged down in a major land war in Asia on territory favorable to the enemy. Freedom expands in peace and authoritarian government in war, and this is precisely the danger now, for the Communists have the manpower to cause us an almost unmanageable situation not only in Viet Nam but in Korea, and force us into a war that could divert our energies from the larger constructive purposes of the nation.

In this situation it is difficult to understand why the problem is not discussed more openly by the President, why the terms of an honorable settlement are not defined, and why the negotiating efforts of the secretary general of the United Nations and other world statesmen are so blithely brushed aside.

It is true that the instability, weakness and sensitivities of the South Vietnamese government have to be kept in mind, but nobody is suggesting a sell-out at their expense. The talk here is not about a Munich agreement but a Korean agreement in which South Viet Nam, like South Korea, would be in a better position to order its own life.

This would not be ideal, but it would be better for the South Vietnamese and for the United States than what we have now, and it would be better for North Viet Nam and China than a larger war.

For if this dangerous game gets out of hand, it is not likely that China's new industries, including her atomic installations at Taklamakan Desert in Central Sinkiang, will be spared. What her manpower can grab beyond her borders would be worth far less than what she would lose at home.

Somebody, however, has to make a move to reverse the trend and stop the present crooked course. For the moment, we seem to be standing before a great issue, and merely digging our thought deeper into the accustomed military rut.

Scholarship Foundation Is Operating

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The Citizens Scholarship Foundation of Ohio is now operating, aimed at helping "B" and "C" students attend college.

The foundation is based on community help in raising funds to send local students to college. Contributions come from door-to-door soliciting and from industries.

The Kettering Foundation is donating $75,000 for a three-year period to establish offices in communities to push the program in Ohio. Robert H. Longworth, executive director of the Ohio foundation, said there are eight active chapters in Ohio now.

He said an advisory committee is to be set up to distribute the foundation funds.

Joseph D. Coons of East Liverpool, Ohio's most active chapter, outlined the procedure of choosing local students and how the city's program is operated. He said a student's need is the determining factor in awarding the scholarships, with scholarship, leadership and ambition also involved.

Coons said students are asked to repay the amount they receive from the fund, but this is not part of the agreement.

Area Woman Enters Beauty School Branch

Mrs. John Dearth, Route 2, Williamsport, has recently entered as a student at the Washington C. H. branch of the Ohio State School of Cosmetology for a complete training in the field of cosmetology.

The branch at Washington C. H. is affiliated with an international group teaching the most modern methods of beauty culture and advanced styling.

Mrs. Dearth will be in school for approximately seven months before receiving her license to practice.

Bills to appropriate the funds Rhodes requested—and to implement the college student financing — were introduced in the House shortly before he spoke.

Rhodes said that great strides had been made in higher education. "Our blue print for brainpower is being translated into buildings and equipment," he said. But to finish the work he allocated $303 million for higher education, "the greatest increase in the history of Ohio and $65 million over the current biennium.

Of the total of $997 million for education—from all sources—in the next two years, $693 million would go for primary and secondary education. Part of this would go for new technical and vocational training centers "to prepare unskilled young people for good jobs," Rhodes said.

He said that by 1970, Ohio will have approximately 1,000 new job applicants every week and "we must provide those jobs."

The industrial financing proposal is needed to help, he said, because even though industrial expansion set a record last year, Ohio must compete for such development with 43 other states which now have such financing plans.

Other key proposals contemplate construction of a new prison to replace the antiquated Ohio Penitentiary, expansion of last year's record highway program, improvement of mental recreation and natural resources and revision of public health and welfare programs.

Rhodes tied nearly every expansion of state service into economic growth. New prison programs, for instance, must be "beared to the practical purpose of returning inmates to jobs and family life so that they can hold a constructive place in society," he said.

A six-year $100 million program for development of recreation and resources, he said, "will be repaid over and over again." He estimated additional tourist trade would generate $100 million a year.

Rhodes also promised establishment of new agricultural research centers to boost the state's farm business.

He termed his budget "a program for brighter tomorrow in the journey to first in the nation and more and better jobs for everyone."

The general operating fund budget of $1.44 billion to run the state for the two years starting next July 1 includes $798.2 million for education, 55.1 per cent of the total.

The current two-year general fund total is $1.24 billion, with $664.6 million for education.

Public schools are due for $620.1 million in the next two years, compared with $534.2 currently from general funds. Higher education will receive $178.1 million from the same source, against $130.4 in this biennium.

Of the $200 million increase in general fund appropriations sought, Rhodes said 66.8 per cent of the boost was for education.

The "all expense" budget hit a total of $4.1 billion, up $500 million from the current total of $3.6 billion.

Major appropriations, in addition to education, include $889 million for highways and highway safety, and $185 million for capital improvements.

Bond money boosted the highway total just over the $1 billion mark in the budget prepared by Finance Director Richard Krabach. He explained that some $10 million in the capital improvements total included unspent bond money for reappropriation.

The balance of the budget was made up of revenues going to local governments automatically and a series of "other funds."

Added to direct appropriations from general funds for public schools, Rhodes said $73.5 million in general rotary funds were designated for primary and secondary education.

The combined figures show an increase of $113.3 million over the current biennium, which was $60 million ahead of the previous two-year period, Krabach said.

A breakdown showed an average of $124.90 per pupil in public school subsidies from appropriated funds and $9.60 from rotaries for a total of $134.50.

Comparable figures for the next biennium will be $139.50 and $15.50 for a total of $155, a boost of 15 per cent.

Health, mental hygiene and welfare will receive $503.4 million, 34.7 per cent of the new general fund total, compared with about $470 million currently.

An anticipated increase of more than $6 million in medical care for the aged is provided for in the budget. Aid for the disabled and aid to dependent children round out the major areas of improved assistance.

Expansion of the community clinic system, 124 remodeling projects at mental hygiene institutions and advances in adult and youth correction together with parole and probation activities also were cited.

General executive and elective agencies will get $127.3 million in general funds, about 9.8 per cent of the total, for an increase of $12.4 million.

Another $20 million is set aside in the budget for initial expenses if voters approve a proposed $290 million bond issue for capital improvements in the May 4 election. Defeat of the bond issue would make the $20 million available for other purposes, Krabach said.

Ohio Valley Council Slated For Meetings

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Ohio prepared today for a quick start when federal funds for President Johnson's new Appalachia program become available.

An expanded Ohio Valley Regional Development Council met during the morning for a "working session" on such facets of the overall program as highways and hospitals.

A joint meeting of that council plus a larger Southeastern Ohio Regional Development Council was scheduled during the afternoon. A top planner of the federal program — possibly John Sweeney, chairman of the Federal Development Planning Committee for Appalachia—was scheduled to speak at that meeting.

Forty to fifty representatives from the 28 Ohio counties included in the federal Appalachia program were to attend the morning session.

These county representatives were to be divided into committees, each to deal with plans for a specific section of the federal program. State officials of agencies involved in will meet with these committees.

One committee will study highway projects under the Appalachia program and this probably will be the hottest of the sessions. Gov. James A. Rhodes and others have objected to what they understand to be federal plans for Appalachia highways—relocation of U. S. 50 and U. S. 23.

Rhodes has proposed an "Appalachian Way," a superhighway across Ohio's Appalachian region, in addition to the present federal route.

Other committees will study such things as new airports, hospitals and other facilities to improve the region.

Rhodes appointed the Ohio Valley Regional Development Council as an 18-member body. He plans to expand that to include one representative from each of the 28 counties.

Today's session was described as an organizational meeting of the expanded council, although Rhodes has not formally named the new members.

Area Woman Enters Beauty School Branch

Mrs. John Dearth, Route 2, Williamsport, has recently entered as a student at the Washington C. H. branch of the Ohio State School of Cosmetology for a complete training in the field of cosmetology.

The branch at Washington C. H. is affiliated with an international group teaching the most modern methods of beauty culture and advanced styling.

Mrs. Dearth will be in school for approximately seven months before receiving her license to practice.

GE Stock, Savings Plans Benefit City Plant Employees

A payout of about $120 million in General Electric stock and U.S. Savings Bonds began last week for 138,000 investment-minded GE employees.

The other plan dates to 1948. It permits employees to invest up to $10 a week in savings bonds. At the end of a five-year holding period, the employee gets his bonds plus a bonus of GE stock worth 15 per cent of the cost of the bonds.

The 1959 plan has nearly 112,000 members, about 80 per cent of those eligible to join. The earlier plan has more than 47,000 members. Both plans are voluntary, but employees may participate in only one.

According to Vice President Day, these plans have helped more than 100,000 employees to become General Electric share owners since 1959.

All told, he said, about one-third of General Electric's 520,000 share owners of record acquired stock under such a plan and well over half the company's 260,000 employees now own General Electric stock. Day said it was "healthy and encouraging to see so many employees have elected to become owners of company stock."

"The fact that many employees are planning to use their investment savings for long-term opportunities—education for their children, for instance—should be good news for the economy in general," he added.

"We've learned that their intentions are in keeping with the long-range benefits conceived by these programs. We're delighted at the help these plans have provided and at the way General Electric men and women have responded to the opportunity."

Pair of Drunks Credited For Nat Cole's Singing

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP)—Friends of Nat (King) Cole, who died here Monday at 45 after having undergone lung surgery three weeks ago, credit a couple of drunks for having turned the one-time pianist into a popular vocalist.

Cole's rise to the pinnacle of success had in it the elements of a bad Hollywood movie: the rags to riches, obscurity to fame plot. But it was true.

Born March 17, 1919, in Alabama to a Baptist preacher and a musically-inclined mother, Nathaniel Adams Cole was raised in Chicago, where his father was minister of the First Baptist church.

Young Nat took to music early, picking out "Yes, We Have No Bananas" on the church piano at the age of 4. As he grew older he played the piano and organ for church services.

Cole came to Long Beach, Calif., in 1937 with a dying review, "Shuffle Along." He was 18, and decided to stay in California. He dropped the final "s" from his name and began tickling voices in dives for $5 a night or less.

It was in such a dive that a soggy barfly one night jammed a paper crown on the young pianist's head and burred, "Look, King Cole!" The nickname stuck and Nat (King) Cole was on his way.

Late in 1937, Cole organized the King Cole Swingsters — with Nat at the piano, Oscar Moore on guitar and Wesley Prince on string bass. Jazz aficionados fell for the trio; but some complained of their lack of a vocalist, until one night at Los Angeles' Swanee Inn, when another elbow bender gave Cole's guiding star a woody nudge.

Wobbling up to the piano, the man commanded: "Sing 'Sweet Lorraine!'"

"We don't sing," Nat said gently.

"Sing!" the man bellowed.

The manager ran up, sized up the situation and told Cole: "Sing. This guy's a big spender. Sometimes three bucks a night."

Cole sang "Sweet Lorraine." He sang from then on.

In 1943 Cole contracted with Capitol Records (then Liberty Records) for "Straighten Up and Fly Right," which he'd written years before for $50 to pay the rent. The disc was a smash hit and Capitol knew it had Cole's work cut out for him.

In 1947, he married pretty Maria Ellington, a vocalist with Duke Ellington (no relation), in a big Harlem wedding. Their honeymoon was financed by the immense sale of another Cole song, "Nature Boy."

Despite Fancy Names, Viet Nam Conflict Said Just Plain War

NEW YORK (AP) — "The time has come to call a spade a bloody shovel. This country is in an undeclared and unexplained war in Viet Nam. Our leaders have a lot of fancy names for it, like escalator and retaliation, but it is war just the same."

So declares James (Scotty) Reston, associate editor and two-time Pulitzer Prize winner of the New York Times. The stand-out correspondent continues:

The cause of the war is plain enough. The North Vietnamese Communists, with the aid of Red China and to a lesser extent the Soviet Union, have sent their guerrillas in South Viet Nam in violation of the 1954 and 1962 Geneva agreements, for the express purpose of taking over the government and territory of South Viet Nam.

The course of the war is equally plain. We were getting licked in South Viet Nam. The Communists were steadily defeating the South Vietnamese armed forces, terrorizing a war-weary and indifferent population and taking advantage of a divided and quarrelsome South Vietnamese government.

More than that, the Communists were stepping up their attacks on the bases and barracks which serve the 23,000 American troops in South Viet Nam, and it was in response to this that President Johnson ordered the bombing attacks on the Communist military installations in the south of North Vietnamese territory.

Very few people here question the necessity for a limited expansion of the war by U.S. bombers into Communist territory. The American and South Vietnamese position was crumbling fast, and the political and strategic consequences of defeat would have been serious for the free world all over Asia.

There is a point, however, where this exercise will become critical. As the military targets in the southern part of Communist Viet Nam are knocked out, and our bombers move northward, they will soon come within the range of the North Vietnamese and Red Chinese MIG fighters, and if we get into that situation, the pressure for attacks on the air bases in North

Viet Nam and South China will steeply increase.

The immediate problem, therefore, is how to put enough pressure on the North Vietnamese to bring them into negotiations for a settlement of the war, without provoking a mass Communist counterattack we are in no position to meet.

This is a delicate and highly dangerous situation. The United States has the air and naval power to wipe out North Viet Nam and the Chinese air force, if it comes into the battle. But the North Vietnamese have a quarter of a million men under arms who have never been committed to the battle at all, and few observes in Washington believe this force could be stopped without the intervention of a very large American army on the ground.

Nobody has made all this clear to the American people. President Johnson has not made a major speech on the details of this war since he entered the White House. Neither did President Kennedy. We have had one long speech on the subject by Secretary of Defense McNamara on March 26 of last year, and a lot of statements here and in Saigon, many of them highly optimistic and misleading. But the fact is that we are in a war that is not only undeclared and unexplained but that has not even been widely debated in the Congress or the country.

The whole history of this century testifies to the difficulty of predicting the consequences of war. We imposed a policy of unconditional surrender on the Kaiser only to find that the two greater menaces of Communism and Nazism took his place. One of the main objectives of the two world wars was the freedom of Eastern Europe, which ended up with less freedom under the Communists than it had before.

Few people here question that

President Johnson wants to limit the war in Viet Nam and avoid a ground war on the continent of Asia, but the future is not wholly in his control. He may be bombing merely to force a negotiated settlement, but the Chinese and the North Vietnamese don't know that. In fact, neither do the American people, whose airmen are carrying out the President's orders.

Nor for that matter, do the allies, who are treaty-bound to support us if we get into a large-scale war in Southeast Asia. They will undoubtedly support a policy of limited retaliation in North Viet Nam if it is for the purpose of negotiating a settlement, but they will not support us for long unless we define and limit our aims.

The implications of this war, then, extend far beyond Viet Nam. President Johnson's hopes of building a strong alliance with Japan and the other free nations of Asia are not likely to be promoted by replaying the old script of American planes once more bombing Asians.

He has started on a massive program of reconstruction and development at home, but he can forget about his Great Society if he gets bogged down in a major land war in Asia on territory favorable to the enemy. Freedom expands in peace and authoritarian government in war, and this is precisely the danger now, for the Communists have the manpower to cause us an almost unmanageable situation not only in Viet Nam but in Korea, and force us into a war that could divert our energies from the larger constructive purposes of the nation.

In this situation it is difficult to understand why the problem is not discussed more openly by the President, why the terms of an honorable settlement are not defined, and why the negotiating efforts of the secretary general of the United Nations and other world statesmen are so blithely brushed aside.

It is true that the instability, weakness and sensitivities of the South Vietnamese government have to be kept in mind, but nobody is suggesting a sell-out at their expense. The talk here is not about a Munich agreement but a Korean agreement in which South Viet Nam, like South Korea, would be in a better position to order its own life.

This would not be ideal, but it would be better for the South Vietnamese and for the United States than what we have now, and it would be better for North Viet Nam and China than a larger war.

For if this dangerous game gets out of hand, it is not likely that China's new industries, including her atomic installations at Taklamakan Desert in Central Sinkiang, will be spared. What her manpower can grab beyond her borders would be worth far less than what she would lose at home.

Somebody, however, has to make a move to reverse the trend and stop the present crooked course. For the moment, we seem to be standing before a great issue, and merely digging our thought deeper into the accustomed military rut.

Scholarship Foundation Is Operating

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Citizens Scholarship Foundation of Ohio is now operating, aimed at helping "B" and "C" students attend college.

The foundation is based on community help in raising funds to send local students to college. Contributions come from door-to-door soliciting and from industries.

The Kettering Foundation is donating $75,000 for a three-year period to establish offices in communities to push the program in Ohio. Robert H. Longworth, executive director of the Ohio foundation, said there are eight active chapters in Ohio now.

He said an advisory committee is to be set up to distribute the foundation funds.

Joseph D. Coons of East Liverpool, Ohio's most active chapter, outlined the procedure of choosing local students and how the city's program is operated. He said a student's need is the determining factor in awarding the scholarships, with scholarship, leadership and ambition also involved.

Coons said students are asked to repay the amount they receive from the fund, but this is not part of the agreement.

JESUS HEALS

It's not as late as you think after Jesus heals you. Jesus can keep those who are well from getting sick. When a sick person is healed by the Christ, the crisis is past. Jesus, who raised the dead, can raise the sick and save the soul. Jesus came to straighten crooked paths for sinners and straighten crooked bodies for the sick. Jesus healed people, then He had them carry their beds to show what a good job of healing He did. Healing from Jesus is included in the Christian religion. It is appointed unto man once to die, but Jesus can postpone the appointment by healing the sick. Salvation is to cleanse the soul from sin; healing is to cleanse the body from disease. Sickness and disease are complicated; God's healing is simple and uncomplicated. Healing from Jesus is so simple a fool could not err therein. Everyone should be in it just as soon as possible.

NEW YORK (AP) — Sidewalk comments of a Pavement Plato: There are two wrong attitudes toward retirement — to hate it too much, or to want it too soon. Those who hate retirement, by and large, are perhaps most often found in the top most brackets of a business or profession. They dislike the thought of giving up the hard-won rewards and pomp that go with position and privilege. A guy who has fought his way to the summit sometimes has to be almost physically shoved off his peak at 65, or at whatever age level company policy sets for retiring. When he leaves his leather swivel chair forever, he does so petulantly and grudgingly, convinced that the empire he has created will quickly fall apart in the hands of the fatheads who succeed him. Such a man stirs a kind of reluctant sympathy. You always feel sorry for an eagle that loses its talons or has its wing clipped. Even more pitiful, however, are a growing number of men who fall in the second class — those who pursue retirement with the same zeal that knights used to search for the Holy Grail. At about the age of 40 or 50, the idea of quitting work becomes a kind of mania with them. They talk about it all day at the office; they dream about it all night at home. They become a nuisance to their fellow workers, their wives, their friends — and probably even to themselves. It is said that one of the chief differences between civilized man and the savage is their differing attitudes toward time. The savage tends to live only for the moment; the civilized man considers the future. The savage drinks up all his wine today on a grand and glorious drunk; the civilized man saves a few bottles for tomorrow and the day after. But a man with retirement mania in early middle age knows neither the foolish ecstasy of the grasshopper nor the true wisdom of the ant. Not long ago I was riding in a cab with one of these fellows. "You know," he said wistfully, "in exactly 14 years, three months and two weeks I can retire — and I can hardly wait." A feeling of pity swept over me for him, and for the thousands of men like him in the business world today. For a man with a retirement obsession no longer is really living — he's slowly dying. He becomes one who hates his job and is afraid any longer to make decisions. Often he becomes miserly. He scribbles and saves at every turn. He quits going to the theater or concerts because they cost too much. He doesn't take a vacation in Florida now because he may need the money to pay on a home there after 65. You can't knock the idea of making a sensible retirement program. But people who spend most of their could-be-happy middle years dreaming about what they'll do when they are 65 aren't being sensible. They are merely wearing their headstone prematurely. By postponing too many pleasures, they forego living. Life is best lived as it happens along the way. You can't put the best of it in the bank to be spent later.

NEW YORK (AP) — Traders on the biggest stock market of them all — the over-the-counter market — are adjusting today to a new method of quoting prices. For 1,300 issues bought and sold nationally but unlisted on any stock exchange, wholesale prices will be quoted instead of retail. For more than 35,000 other issues, traded only regionally or locally, the old rules still apply.

Some of the small dealers tried unsuccessfully last week to get a court order forbidding NASD to start the wholesale quotations Feb. 15. The new method of quotation of over-the-counter stocks is just one of the SEC proposals made a year ago. Already it has secured law revisions requiring the bigger companies whose stocks are traded over the counter to make public disclosures of their financial status, comparable to those required of companies whose stocks are listed on exchanges.

Looking Back In Pickaway County

FIVE YEARS AGO
A Valentine's Party was held at the Corwin St. School for grades 1-6.

The Pickaway County Farmer and Sportsman Assn. called a special meeting to discuss the new Ohio Boating Acts.

Historic houses and building of Pickaway County were to be discussed during a meeting of the Pickaway County Historical Society in the Courthouse.

TEN YEARS AGO
Mrs. Morris Dillard and son of Amarillo, Tex., planned to visit her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dallas Elliott, N. Pickaway St.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Friend and family of Dartmouth Dr. were hosts to his brother, Robert W. Friend of West Lafayette, Ind., a pitcher for the Pittsburgh Pirates who planned to leave for spring training in Ft. Myers, Fla.

The 18th District and Pickaway County organization of Knights of Pythias planned a meeting in the K of P Hall.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO
Mrs. Ella Hornbeck and Mrs. Henry Mader were joint hostesses to a bridge luncheon for 30 guests at the Mader residence, Pinckney St.

Twenty-five juniors and seniors, accompanied by Miss Margaret Rooney, attended the matinee performance of Maurice Evans' uncut version of the play "Hamlet."

One hundred and fifty children of 58 families and 39 blind persons received aid from the Board of Public Assistance during the past month according to a report by Miss Virginia Smith, secretary.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

THE LATE Sinclair ("Red") Lewis, author of "Main Street" and "Arrowsmith," spent his last night in my house. At dinner, he explained to my wife and myself that he would have to retire early, since he was scheduled to board his boat for Italy at eight the following morning.

While we were having coffee, the phone rang. It was William Faulkner, arrived unexpectedly in New York. "Can I ask Bill to come over?" I inquired of Lewis. "No, you cannot," snapped Red. "Haven't you been a publisher long enough to know that you don't bring two of your big authors together at any time? This is my night. Tell Faulkner you'll see him tomorrow." That's how it was arranged. Soon after Lewis went upstairs to bed, but about an hour later my wife and I were alarmed to hear him shouting, "Bennett! Bennett!" I rushed into the hall to call up, "What's the matter, Red?" "Nothing at all," he answered mollified. "I just wanted to make sure you hadn't sneaked off to see Faulkner!"

The manager of a new motel off Broadway is determined that decorum will be the rule there as long as he has anything to say about the matter. Asked recently by a pretty blonde if she could wait for her fiancé in the lobby, he answered curtly, "You may—provided you already know who he is!"

Speaking of YOUR HEALTH...

By LESTER L. COLEMAN, M.D.

The hypochondriac, the chronic complainer about non-existing illness, may call forth impatience by his preoccupation with his own health. Yet his complaints must not be dismissed as an annoying burden that doesn't deserve sympathetic understanding.

Hypochondriasis must be considered as an illness in itself. It does devalue the individual. It does keep him from normal, productive activity. It does deprive him of happiness and fun of family life, sports, and the joys of day-to-day living.

The disease of the hypochondriac centers around persistent concern about the state of emotional and physical health. Almost always there is no real bodily disease to substantiate his fears.

Everyone has a certain amount of concern about his health. This concern becomes more evident when, for a short while, an illness deprives him of the health he may have taken for granted.

Special periods of emotional stress, business and financial worries, seem to make some people more conscious of insignificant complaints. Discomfort that would normally not be a source of concern suddenly takes on unreasonable significance.

The hypochondriac, who jumps from symptom to symptom and from disease to disease, is the victim of an "illness" that is exceedingly real to him. The hypochondriac cannot be advised to "forget about it" with a "this too shall pass" attitude.

The numerous aches, pains and illnesses reflect a deep-seated inner anxiety, conflict

Now that the Johnson Administration has decided to use the federal power to beautify the landscape and to take pollution out of our streams and lakes and the circumscribed air, you will probably be hearing a lot about the new economic of "social costs."

The argument which is familiar to Britishers and continental Europeans, is that free capitalism imposes "costs" on the community that cannot be charged back to any businesses in particular. A small community gradually becomes a big one — and suddenly the combined fumes from thousands of motor cars and the combined discharge of scores of smokestacks become a staggering burden on everybody living in a given area. Someone may get lung cancer from breathing the polluted atmosphere, but how do you charge any particular culprit with the "social cost" of the cancer victim's hospitalization and surgery?

The pollution of nearby streams and lakes may force families to take expensive for seaside vacations far from their homes, but how charge that back to specific individuals or companies? To take care of the "social costs," the government has to step in to force car owners to attach smog - control gadgets to their cars and to provide for community clean-up drives. It has to take charge of the reforestation of denuded areas and provide segregated areas for junk heaps. So the justification goes for federal interference of the type that President Lyndon Johnson has proposed.

The drawback to the argument that the "community" must somehow shoulder the "social costs" that escape reflection in the balance sheets of private industry is that the politicians who normally represent the community are apt to be just as deficient in taste and standards as anybody else. Take the New York City subway system, for example. It is dirty, the advertisements that it spots in its cars are just as much affront to the eyes as the billboards on private property next to public roads, and the service at peak hours is terrible. If it could be turned over to General Motors, it would be considerably improved.

Or take Yellowstone Park, for example, and compare it with the privately run vacation operation at Sun Valley in Idaho. The natural wonders of Yellowstone cannot be duplicated elsewhere, but the public-run accommodations in our national parks do not compare with what the Union Pacific Railroad can offer for comparable prices at its vacation site terminals. The "social costs" of any park can be observed in the broken glass and the sagging fences and the molestation dangers that somehow escape the ability of municipalities to clean them up.

Some public buildings are a delight to look at, but all too often they represent new lows in esthetic taste. There is no more guarantee that a state or a city or the federal government will hire a competent architect than there is a guarantee that a private industry won't erect just one more barbarous boxlike structure of unimaginative glass.

The "social cost" of an army establishment is ordinarily levied on the individual in terms of ugly barracks. In Britain, the so-called council houses erected by the government are horrible to behold; and if recent reports are to be believed, their deficient heating systems are responsible for an upsurge of respiratory diseases. When the government gets into business it is invariably a prey to civil service feather-bedding. Indeed, the chief argument offered by Secretary of Defense McNamara for closing down publicly owned shipyards is that the "social costs" of operating them were coming too high.

None of this is to be construed as an argument against beautifying the landscape and getting the smog out of our city air and making it possible once more for self-respecting fish to live in our lakes and rivers. But the "social cost" argument applies to what government does no less than it applies to private industry. If President Johnson can beautify our surroundings that will be just fine and dandy. But the inability of government to keep a public washroom clean should make him wary about turning the responsibility for our surroundings over to any bureaucracy.

The history of inks can be traced back at least to more than four thousand years ago. It is known that the Egyptians of that time wrote on papyrus with a substance that was made by adding powdered coloring matter to a solution of gum or glue in water or oil.

Wrong Attitudes on Retirement

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK (AP) — Sidewalk comments of a Pavement Plato: There are two wrong attitudes toward retirement — to hate it too much, or to want it too soon. Those who hate retirement, by and large, are perhaps most often found in the top most brackets of a business or profession. They dislike the thought of giving up the hard-won rewards and pomp that go with position and privilege.

A guy who has fought his way to the summit sometimes has to be almost physically shoved off his peak at 65, or at whatever age level company policy sets for retiring.

When he leaves his leather swivel chair forever, he does so petulantly and grudgingly, convinced that the empire he has created will quickly fall apart in the hands of the fatheads who succeed him.

Such a man stirs a kind of reluctant sympathy. You always feel sorry for an eagle that loses its talons or has its wing clipped.

Even more pitiful, however, are a growing number of men who fall in the second class — those who pursue retirement with the same zeal that knights used to search for the Holy Grail.

At about the age of 40 or 50, the idea of quitting work becomes a kind of mania with them. They talk about it all day at the office; they dream about it all night at home.

They become a nuisance to their fellow workers, their wives, their friends — and probably even to themselves.

It is said that one of the chief differences between civilized man and the savage is their differing attitudes toward time.

The savage tends to live only for the moment; the civilized man considers the future.

The savage drinks up all his wine today on a grand and glorious drunk; the civilized man saves a few bottles for tomorrow and the day after.

But a man with retirement mania in early middle age knows neither the foolish ecstasy of the grasshopper nor the true wisdom of the ant.

Not long ago I was riding in a cab with one of these fellows.

"You know," he said wistfully, "in exactly 14 years, three months and two weeks I can retire — and I can hardly wait."

A feeling of pity swept over me for him, and for the thousands of men like him in the business world today.

For a man with a retirement obsession no longer is really living — he's slowly dying. He becomes one who hates his job and is afraid any longer to make decisions.

Often he becomes miserly. He scripps and saves at every turn. He quits going to the theater or concerts because they cost too much. He doesn't take a vacation in Florida now because he may need the money to pay on a home there after 65.

You can't knock the idea of making a sensible retirement program. But people who spend most of their could-be-happy middle years dreaming about what they'll do when they are 65 aren't being sensible.

They are merely wearing their headstone prematurely. By postponing too many pleasures, they forego living.

Life is best lived as it happens along the way. You can't put the best of it in the bank to be spent later.

The Business World

By Sam Dawson

NEW YORK (AP) — Traders on the biggest stock market of them all — the over-the-counter market — are adjusting today to a new method of quoting prices.

For 1,300 issues bought and sold nationally but unlisted on any stock exchange, wholesale prices will be quoted instead of retail. For more than 35,000 other issues, traded only regionally or locally, the old rules still apply.

But there's a dispute still far from settled as to who will be the gainers and who the losers from the change to wholesale quotations for the 1,300 issues.

The Securities and Exchange Commission says the new method will give investors a true picture of prices, the insiders' quotations or wholesale prices, rather than the retail prices previously quoted. These were the insiders' or dealers' prices plus an unpublished commission or markup.

The public thus can get a clearer picture of just what an over-the-counter stock is really bringing in the market for those in the know.

But a sizable segment of the 4,100 over-the-counter dealers who belong to the National Association of Securities Dealers, Inc. — NASD — says that what is really going to happen is this: Small dealers will be forced out of business when investors shop around for the smallest commission, and only the big stock and bond houses will survive because a big volume of business will let them charge the smallest commissions. Some of the small dealers tried unsuccessfully last week to get a court order forbidding NASD to start the wholesale quotations Feb. 15.

The new method of quotation of over-the-counter stocks is just one of the SEC proposals made a year ago. Already it has secured law revisions requiring the bigger companies whose stocks are traded over the counter to make public disclosures of their financial status, comparable to those required of companies whose stocks are listed on exchanges.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

THE LATE Sinclair ("Red") Lewis, author of "Main Street" and "Arrowsmith," spent his last night in my house. At dinner, he explained to my wife and myself that he would have to retire early, since he was scheduled to board his boat for Italy at eight the following morning.

While we were having coffee, the phone rang. It was William Faulkner, arrived unexpectedly in New York. "Can I ask Bill to come over?" I inquired of Lewis. "No, you cannot," snapped Red. "Haven't you been a publisher long enough to know that you don't bring two of your big authors together at any time? This is my night. Tell Faulkner you'll see him tomorrow."

That's how it was arranged. Soon after Lewis went upstairs to bed, but about an hour later my wife and I were alarmed to hear him shouting, "Bennett! Bennett!" I rushed into the hall to call up, "What's the matter, Red?" "Nothing at all," he answered mollified. "I just wanted to make sure you hadn't sneaked off to see Faulkner!"

The manager of a new motel off Broadway is determined that decorum will be the rule there as long as he has anything to say about the matter. Asked recently by a pretty blonde if she could wait for her fiancé in the lobby, he answered curtly, "You may—provided you already know who he is!"

Speaking of YOUR HEALTH...

By LESTER L. COLEMAN, M.D.

The hypochondriac, the chronic complainer about non-existing illness, may call forth impatience by his preoccupation with his own health.

Yet his complaints must not be dismissed as an annoying burden that doesn't deserve sympathetic understanding.

Hypochondriasis must be considered as an illness in itself. It does devitalize the individual. It does keep him from normal, productive activity. It does deprive him of happiness and fun of family life, sports, and the joys of day-to-day living.

The disease of the hypochondriac centers around persistent concern about the state of emotional and physical health. Almost always there is no real bodily disease to substantiate his fears.

Everyone has a certain amount of concern about his health. This concern becomes more evident when, for a short while, an illness deprives him of the health he may have taken for granted.

Special periods of emotional stress, business and financial worries, seem to make some people more conscious of insignificant complaints. Discomfort that would normally not be a source of concern suddenly takes on unreasonable significance.

The hypochondriac, who jumps from symptom to symptom and from disease to disease, is the victim of an "illness" that is exceedingly real to him.

The hypochondriac cannot be advised to "forget about it" with a "this too shall pass" attitude.

The numerous aches, pains and illnesses reflect a deep-seated inner anxiety, conflict and insecurity. Many hypochondriacs are unconsciously motivated by an awareness of various benefits to be gained by the imaginary symptoms which to them are very real.

Sympathy and attention are often concentrated on the hypochondriac, even though there is repeated evidence that no real illness exists. Seeking refuge in the excuse of illness is often a reflection of an inability to cope with life's problems.

The hypochondriac must be encouraged to seek psychological guidance for a greater understanding of his inner emotional confusion and distress. When this is clarified, many of the symptoms tend to disappear, or at least be sufficiently controlled so that they do not interfere with normal activity.

While giving emotional guidance to the hypochondriac, it must be remembered that hypochondriacs can also develop symptoms of real disease, which should not be dismissed or minimized because of a past history of imaginary complaints.

Many of these patients pose a very difficult problem to their families and to their doctors. Physicians quickly recognize that the symptoms are truly distressing to a hypochondriac. They listen intently to these patients and allow them to express themselves freely. Often this is sufficient to alleviate their unfounded fears.

Reassuring explanations and modern tranquilizing drug therapy have been a great contribution to these troubled people, who deserve understanding without overindulgence, sympathy—but more than that they need direction towards a real solution of their basic problem.

Government Beautification?

By John Chamberlain

Now that the Johnson Administration has decided to use the federal power to beautify the landscape and to take pollution out of our streams and lakes and the circumscribed air, you will probably be hearing a lot about the new economic of "social costs."

The argument which is familiar to Britishers and continental Europeans, is that free capitalism imposes "costs" on the community that cannot be charged back to any businesses in particular. Dear Abby: By Abigail Van Buren

A Barber Is a Barber Only

DEAR ABBY: So you say a barber is not permitted or qualified to remove blackheads? Well, please go to the library and read The Practice and Science of Standard Barbering, and I believe that you will change your mind after reading the chapter — Diseases of the Skin, Scalp and Hair. I am a student at a barber college in Covington, Kentucky, and I have personally removed two warts from the face of a customer by high frequency treatments. I have also removed countless blackheads from the faces of many others.

A barber is trained and qualified to treat any skin disease of the scalp, skin or hair if the disease is not contagious.

Sincerely Yours,
A FUTURE BARBER
DEAR ABBY: A barber is neither qualified nor licensed to treat diseases of the skin, whether contagious or otherwise. It is possible that when you removed two "warts" from the face of your customer one of them may have been a cancer, and the high frequency treatment you used could have spread malignant cells into the bloodstream. It is also possible when you remove blackheads you are unaware that your customer may be a diabetic or suffer from hemophilia (a bleeding disease). Highly qualified dermatologists require special laboratory techniques before they know whether a scaling of the scalp is ringworm or ordinary dandruff.

So my advice to you is to perfect your skill as a barber, and do not trust even the best-trained surgeon you know to cut your hair. He might get carried away and scalp you?

DEAR ABBY: If your husband, who has always been very conservative, suddenly and for no apparent reason or occasion, gave you an expensive monogrammed vanity case, would you be suspicious?

BROWN EYES
DEAR ABBY: Not if they were MY initials.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been happily married for ten years. We have four lovely children. When I first started dating my husband, I told him I was five years younger than I really was, because he was five years younger than I and I was afraid he wouldn't continue to date me if he knew it.

When we did get married, I still couldn't bring myself to tell him the truth, so I gave my age as the same as his for the marriage records. To this day he believes we are the same age. This has bothered me, Abby, because I feel that one day he might find out. Should I let him go on thinking I am five years younger than I really am?

AGE PROBLEM
DEAR ABBY: Tell him the truth. Deceiving him in the first place was wrong of course. But any woman who can knock five years off her age and get away with it deserves a little credit for having preserved herself so well.

DEAR ABBY: I was very pleased with the way you answered the young man who insisted that his widowed mother wear her wedding ring so people wouldn't think he was "illegitimate."

I have been married for four years and have one child and another on the way, but I do not wear jewelry of any kind. Not even a wedding ring. The reason being that I simply cannot stand to have anything on my fingers. It makes me nervous.

I know an unmarried girl who has a child. The baby's father can't marry her because he already has a wife and two children, but SHE wears a wedding and engagement ring. So tell the widow's son that a ring does not mean a thing.

Mission Home Discussed by Mrs. Kasler

The Ladies Missionary Society of Church of Christ Christian met Thursday in the home of Mrs. James Taylor Sr.

Mrs. Donald Kasler led the group in devotions and then presented slides of the Grundy Mountain Mission of Grundy, Va. Mrs. Kasler told how the home was started and how it is operated. She told about the children who are there and how they came to the home.

A poem about missionaries was read by Miss Robin Thomas, written by her grandmother, Mrs. Laura Cordeil.

Dessert was served by the hostess assisted by Mrs. Bob Miller.

Others attending were Mrs. Pharis Kreiger, Mrs. William Gary, Mrs. Cecil Cordle, Mrs. Carl Clifton, Mrs. Roger Thomas, Mrs. Clyde McGlone, Mrs. Robert DeVold, Miss Daisey Karlskint and Mrs. Harold Clifton.

2nd Birthday Is Observed

Susan Lynn Davis, daughter of Mrs. and Mrs. Clifford Davis near Chillicothe, was honored with a party on her second birthday Sunday.

The World Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — If the world seems quieter, and duller, than it did a few years ago, one of the reasons is a change at the top around the world.

There's no sparkle in the new leaders, who are more the silent type. The old leaders still around have pretty much clammed up, maybe because they have it made and can afford to go easier.

President Johnson, lacking President John F. Kennedy's color, seldom sounds off on foreign affairs and almost totally avoids the big televised news conferences which Kennedy found fabulously useful in getting across ideas and personalities.

Yet Johnson in less than 15 months in office has probably talked privately to more newsmen than Kennedy did in almost three years. But Johnson does it in a way which keeps him anonymous and unseen.

He talks off the record or for what is known as background. So when newsmen write about these meetings with him they have to express the ideas they use as their own and without any indication they came from him.

For Johnson this may be a useful way to float trial balloons to test public reaction without getting criticized for what the public doesn't like, but it doesn't make him a vivid figure in the national eye. Anything but.

One of Nikita Khrushchev's complaints about Joseph Stalin, after the old tyrant died, was that he had encouraged a personality cult, his own. Then Khrushchev for years as premier, until banished, built a personality cult around himself. It was one of the reasons given for throwing him out.

But while he lasted he kept the world dazed and dazzled with his threats, travels and flamboyancies. In his years of prominence he was the world's most spectacular figure.

Soviet Health Exhibit Opposed in Cincinnati

CINCINNATI (AP) — Russian officials of the Soviet Health Exhibit to be brought here said Monday they expect no trouble from groups opposing the showing.

The National States Rights party, led by Mrs. Albert Witte, local leader, picketed at city-owned Music Hall Monday where the exhibit is to be shown Feb. 26-March 27. About a half-dozen pickets were on hand.

DP&L Gets Approval To Purchase System

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Power Commission has granted the Dayton Power & Light Co. authority to purchase the electrical system of Bellefontaine, Ohio.

Bellefontaine City Council voted earlier, and the city's voters later agreed to sell the city's electric and gas facilities to the highest bidder, for not less than $5,128,200. Dayton Power & Light submitted the only bid—$3,574,949 for the electric facilities and $1,676,351 for the gas facilities. The Power Commission's approval Monday did not include the gas facilities.

but talks less.

In the years when he defied Stalin and broke with Stalin, Yugoslavia's Marshal Tito kept the Balkans on fire. But Stalin is gone, the Soviet Union is kept busy elsewhere, as with Red China, and Tito, getting older is hardly heard.

When India's Prime Minister Nehru died last year the world lost one of the monumental figures of the century an articulate and irritating man. The new prime minister, Lal Bhaadur Shastri, is an almost shadowy kind of successor.

Even Fidel Castro, one of the noisiest embarrassments to this country in recent years, is almost mousy compared with the Castro of the old days, which were just a couple of years ago.

French President Charles de Gaulle is still around, still both a dramatist and a dreamer, but he keeps his big public appearances to a minimum, and West Germany's Chancellor Konrad Adenauer was far more forceful-acting than his successor.

The new chancellor, Ludwig Erhard, is more like Johnson. He's a technician. While Erhard seems to have no sense of drama at all, Johnson does, but Johnson so far appears reluctant to try it much.

A few years ago one of the most troublesome characters on earth, and one of the noisiest, was President Gamal Abdel Nasser of the United Arab Republic. He's still troublesome

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

A Barber Is a Barber Only

DEAR ABBY: So you say a barber is not permitted or qualified to remove blackheads? Well, please go to the library and read The Practice and Science of Standard Barbering, and I believe that you will change your mind after reading the chapter — Diseases of the Skin, Scalp and Hair. I am a student at a barber college in Covington, Kentucky, and I have personally removed two warts from the face of a customer by high frequency treatments. I have also removed countless blackheads from the faces of many others.

A barber is trained and qualified to treat any skin disease of the scalp, skin or hair if the disease is not contagious.

Sincerely Yours,
A FUTURE BARBER

The World Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — If the world seems quieter, and duller, than it did a few years ago, one of the reasons is a change at the top around the world.

There's no sparkle in the new leaders, who are more the silent type. The old leaders still around have pretty much clammed up, maybe because they have it made and can afford to go easier.

President Johnson, lacking President John F. Kennedy's color, seldom sounds off on foreign affairs and almost totally avoids the big televised news conferences which Kennedy found fabulously useful in getting across ideas and personality.

If his successors are involved in a cult it's one of silence, as Premier Kosygin demonstrated when he returned to Moscow Monday from his trip to Red China, North Korea and North Viet Nam.

He was in North Viet Nam a week ago when it was bombed by American planes. But instead of making a speech or public pronouncement when he arrived at the Moscow airport, he went into a long huddle with his fellow Kremmites.

Kosygin hasn't said or done one memorable thing since he took over from Khrushchev last fall.

French President Charles de Gaulle is still around, still both a dramatist and a dreamer, but he keeps his big public appearances to a minimum, and West Germany's Chancellor Konrad Adenauer was far more forceful-acting than his successor.

In Memoriam

In memory of our beloved wife,
mother, grandmother and great
grandmother, Dorothy Arledge,
who passed away five years ago today, Feb. 18, 1960.
In a graveside softly sleeping,
Where the flowers gently wave,
But whom we could not save,
Lies the mother we loved so dearly.
God knows how much we miss her,
He counts the tears we shed,
And whispers that she only sleeps
My loved one is not dead.
If all the world was ours, to give
We would give it, yes, and more,
To see the face of the one we loved.
And to have her back once more,
We didn't know the pain she had,
Or hear her final sigh.
We only know we passed away
Without a final good-bye.
God gave us strength to face it,
And courage to bear the blow,
But what it meant to lose her.
No one will ever know.
Loved and sadly missed by husband William Arledge and family.

In Memoriam

In memory of our beloved wife,
mother, grandmother and great
grandmother, Dorothy Arledge,
who passed away five years ago to-
day, Feb. 15, 1960.
In a graveside softly sleeping,
Where the flowers gently wave,
But whom we could not save,
Lies the mother we loved so dearly
God knows how much we miss her,
He counts the tears we shed,
And whispers that she only sleeps
My loved one is not dead.
If all the world was ours, to give
We would give it, yes, and more,
To see the face of the one we lov-
ed,
And to have her back once more.
We didn't know the pain she had,
Or hear her final sigh,
We only know she passed away
Without a last good-bye.
God gave us strength to face it,
And courage to bear the blow,
But what it meant to lose her
No one will ever know.
Loved and sadly missed by husband William Arledge and family.

Circleville Meets Groveport In Central District Tourney

The Circleville High School basketball team was paired with Groveport for its first Class AA Central District Tournament test slated 7 p.m. Feb. 26 at Bexley High School.

Teays Valley, the county's other class AA school, drew Marion Franklin. This contest is set for 8:30 p.m. Feb. 26 at Otterbein College, Westerville.

The Class AA pairings were made last night at Willard's Restaurant, Bexley, under the direction of tournament manager Ralph Webster and the Central District Athletic Board.

The draw for Circleville was probably as advantageous as possible in the tough 43-team district tournament.

GROVEPORT has an overall record of seven wins and nine losses to date. Should the Tigers get past this initial test, they will face the winner of the Olen-tangy-Delaware Hayes game.

Olen-tangy is sporting a 1-13 record for the season. Hayes has notched four wins in 17 contests.

The seeded team in the Circleville bracket is London, a quintet owning a 16-1 record. The lone loss was to powerful Urbana.

Teays Valley's opponent, Marion Franklin, has a 7-8 record for the season. The school is a member of the Columbus City League.

If the Vikings get past Marion Franklin, they will have, in all probability, No. 1 seeded Linden McKinley to play in their second game. Linden drew Franklin Heights in first round play.

Washington C.H., the other South Central Ohio League team that plays in the Central District, drew London for its first game.

TEAMS that were seeded, in addition to London and Linden McKinley, were Columbus South, Columbus West, Newark, Pleasant View, Columbus East and Bishop Hartley.

The tournament this year will start Feb. 26 with two games each scheduled at Upper Arlington, Bexley, Otterbein, and Grandview and three games in the Ohio State Fairgrounds Coliseum.

The remainder of the first round games are played at all sites except Grandview Feb. 27.

Second round games are scheduled Mar. 4 at Arlington, Bexley, Grandview and the Coliseum. But as the quarter finals of the tournament get under way Mar. 5, competition moves to the Coliseum.

This year, two teams will go from the Central District to the Regionals, also scheduled at the Coliseum.

The winner of the upper bracket will play the winner of the Athens tournament. The winner of the lower bracket will meet the winner of the Steubenville tournament.

HERE is the district tournament schedule:
Feb. 26: (At Upper Arlington) Mt. Vernon vs Whetstone, 7 p.m.; Marysville vs Bexley, 8:30 p.m.; (at Bexley) Circleville vs Groveport, 7 p.m.; Olen-tangy vs Delaware Hayes, 8:30 p.m.; (at Grandview) London vs Washington C.H., 7 p.m.; Buckeye Valley vs Utica, 8:30 p.m.; (at Otterbein) Linden McKinley vs Franklin Heights, 7 p.m.; Teays Valley vs Marion Franklin, 8:30 p.m.; (at Coliseum) Eastmoor vs North, 6 p.m.; Hamilton Twp. vs Hilliard, 7:30 p.m.; Fairfield Union vs West, 9 p.m.

Feb. 27: (At Upper Arlington) Desales vs Central, 7 p.m.; Pleasant View vs Walnut Ridge, 8:30 p.m.; (at Otterbein) South vs Upper Arlington, 7 p.m.; Ready vs Westerville, 8:30 p.m.; (at Bexley) Brookhaven vs Grandview, 7 p.m.; East vs Whitehall, 8:30 p.m.; (at Coliseum) Reynoldsburg vs Mifflin, 5 p.m.; Gahanna Lincoln vs Hartley, 6:30 p.m.; Newark vs Lakewood, 8 p.m.; Watterson vs Grove City, 9:30 p.m.

Worthington plays the winner of the Fairfield Union-West game 7 p.m. Mar. 4 at Coliseum.

2 Ohioans Named To Virginia Staff

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP)—Virginia's new head football coach George Blackburn has completed his staff by naming three assistants, two of whom have Ohio ties.

Named offensive backfield and end coach was Ben Wilson, head coach and athletic director at Harding High School in Warren, Ohio. Wilson, 39, is a graduate of Heidelberg College and formerly coached at Mount Vernon.

Bob Marich, 33, who played under Blackburn when he was head coach at the University of Cincinnati, will be the new defensive line coach. It is the second time Marich, who has been coaching at Tulane, will be on the Virginia staff. He was line coach in 1958-59.

The third new assistant, 29-year-old John Symank, also has been an assistant at Tulane.

Chismar Is Moved Up As Canton Grid Pilot

CANTON, Ohio (AP)—The appointment of Ron Chismar as football coach at McKinley High School was confirmed Monday night by the Board of Education.

Chismar, 30, was named last Thursday to succeed Don Nehlen, who gave up the job to become assistant football coach at Bowling Green State University. He was offensive coach under Nehlen last season.

Former coach Billy Heman has a two-year contract to manage the Boston Red Sox.

Football Deaths

Climb Sharply

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A sharp increase in football deaths last year was noted today by Dr. Floyd R. Eastwood, chairman of the American Football Coaches Association.

Dr. Eastwood says deaths rose from 24 in 1963 to 45 in 1964.

Most of the deaths (27) could be traced to traumatic blows while the others came from indirect causes, including heart failure, heat stroke and infection, the professor said.

Twenty-one of the traumatic deaths were suffered in high school games, three in college, two in sandlot play and one by a professional athlete, Eastwood said.

Papa Bear Sees

NFL-AFL Clash

PALM DESERT, Calif. (AP)—There will be a meeting of the National and American Football League teams in the "near future" in the opinion of one of the strongest owners-coaches of the old established NFL, George Halas of the Chicago Bears.

Halas, who laughs at his title as the junior-elder statesman of the NFL—actually he is the elder statesman—expressed this opinion as the NFL plunged into its formal meeting.

Halas, one of the founders of the league, would not pinpoint the exact year of any NFL-AFL game, but he did say it was inevitable in the not-too-distant future.

Lions, Redskins Paired In Hall of Fame Test

PALM DESERT, Calif. (AP)—The annual Hall of Fame contest, to be played this year between the Detroit Lions and the Washington Redskins, has been set for Sept. 12 at Canton, Ohio, home of the National Professional Football Hall of Fame.

The game will be played on the last weekend prior to the opening of the regular season Sept. 19, one week later than usual.

Canton Returns As Top Team in AA Cage Listing

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Canton McKinley defeated Massillon 55-46 last Friday—first time in nine years the Bulldogs have beaten the Tigers twice in the same campaign—and the Stark County powerhouse vaulted back into the lead in the high school basketball poll.

Lima Shawnee, which had ousted the Bulldogs from the top spot last week in the Associated Press ratings, skidded to the runner-up spot. Just a week ago, 23 newspaper and 32 radio-television sports editors voted in the poll.

McKinley's total against the Tigers was the team's lowest output of the season. Urbana, Cincinnati Withrow, Cleveland St. Ignatius and Youngstown Boardman followed the leaders, in the same order as last week. The only Class AA change came as Portsmouth's twice-beaten Tortugas moved up a notch to seventh, trading places with Newark, and Columbus South took over tenth place vacated by Piqua.

Celina Immaculate Conception retained the lead in Class A as Lakeside—all-season leader until last week—slipped to third and surrendered the runner-up berth to Batavia's 17-game winners. Only Batavia and Minster (16-0) are unblemished in the Class A top 10. Five of the Class AA elite have clean records, including the top four.

Mississippi's Racial Record Is Under Fire

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — The state advisory committee to the U.S. Civil Rights Commission said today that police brutality, economic pressures and night riders have forced Mississippi negroes to accept an inferior station or live in terror.

The biracial committee's charges were presented in a report to the commission, which began public hearings today on the racial situation in Mississippi.

The report, presented by Dr. A. B. Britton Jr., a Jackson Negro physician and committee chairman, noted what it termed progress in recent months.

This included free registration of Negroes as voters in some counties, desegregation of many public accommodations, testimony from officials of Greenville and Gulfport before the committee and statements from various business and civic groups urging compliance with the Civil Rights Act.

Most of the 19-page report reviewed complaints and testimony received by the 10-member committee over the past year.

The group — which includes three Negroes — reported many were reluctant to testify for fear of reprisal.

In one instance, the report said, the home of a former McComb policeman was bombed hours after he testified.

The report said committee members themselves had been victims of both economic and social pressures, and, in at least one instance, a member had been forced to leave the state.

The committee reported "law enforcement officials," as well as private citizens, have actively thwarted efforts of individuals and groups to register to vote in a number of counties.

"Witnesses from several southwest Mississippi counties reported that crosses had been burned in their yards."

The committee reported witness testimony of a kidnapping and beating, a store bombing, and a shooting at a home.

"Under color of law, voter registration workers have been stopped on roads and highways and subjected to cursings, insults and physical beatings," the report said.

The report said at Canton, "witnesses reported that police continually harassed persons attending voter registration rallies" and that officers in the area had beaten and arrested some participants.

"Several witnesses reported that in some sections of Mississippi there appeared to be a pattern of collusion between local law-enforcement officers and hoodlum elements," the report said.

It mentioned associations between officers and leaders of the Ku Klux Klan and beatings shortly after civil rights workers were stopped by officers.

The committee said "the idea of the dignity and worth of every individual is . . . systematically violated and an injustice done to all when 42.3 per cent of the citizens of this state must either accept an inferior station in life and an attitude of servility or endanger themselves and their families. Terror hangs over the Negro in Mississippi and is an expectancy for those who refuse to accept their color as a badge of inferiority."

The committee criticized the state government on grounds of not seeking actively to protect the rights of all citizens and it criticized the state press for "failing to meet its obligations to alert people."

The report mentioned few places, names and people.

Cleveland Municipal Power Plant Sought

CLEVELAND (AP) — The Cleveland Electric Illuminating Co. has made a $60 million offer for the city's municipal light plant, city hall sources said Monday. Mayor Ralph S. Locher confirmed the offer was made in a letter to Ralph M. Besse, CEI president, but the mayor said the letter did not stipulate any amount.

Locher, who said the city has "always maintained the light plant is not for sale," confirmed that CEI would be will to pay "many millions of dollars over the outstanding debt of the plant."

The municipal plant has an $11 million bonded indebtedness.

Chambermen Take Close Look at Four Issues, Bills

An observation that the state administration-backed issues up for voter approval in May "will all pass or all fail" was sounded here yesterday.

Voicing his appraisal of the administration's four constitutional amendment proposals was John Senn of the Ohio Chamber of Commerce Legislative Committee. He addressed approximately 20 Circleville Chamber directors and community officials during a noon meeting at Tinks.

Senn concentrated his remarks on current key factors facing the 106 General Assembly and aspects of the four issues. The voter proposals are: 1. A $290 million capital improvements bond issue; 2. Reapportionment of the House of Representatives; 3. Guarantee of loans to college students; 4. Allowance of public loans to private industry.

The Ohio Chamberman said indications are the public will vote either "yes" or "no" on all four issues. He said it was his guess all will pass or all will fail.

Senn said he assumed this opinion on the grounds that many voters will feel strongly affirmative or negative toward one particular issue — which could be the decisive factor in voting on all four.

Kidnaper Of Girl, 7, Is Suicide

CLEVELAND (AP) — A 22-year-old admitted kidnap of a 7-year-old girl took his own life early today in a cellblock in Cuyahoga County Jail, the sheriff's office reported.

Chief Jailor William Lynch said the body of William Rehman was found hanging from a bar at 4:35 a.m.

Lynch said Rehman tied a hand and bath towel around his neck and apparently climbed onto a radiator and then stepped off.

Rehman left a note addressed "to whom it may concern" in which he said he was sorry for what had happened to Donna Adkins and wished it had not happened, Lynch said.

A plea of innocent was entered by Rehman when he was arraigned Feb. 11 on a charge of kidnapping the little girl.

He had admitted forcing Donna into a car near her west side home Jan. 21, holding her overnight in a garage and then abandoning her on the Ohio Turnpike 13 miles from her home.

Before releasing the girl, Rehman fired blank cartridges near her eyes, he told police. One of the girl's eyes later had to be removed by surgery.

A parole violator, he was held under $50,000 bond in the jail awaiting trial on the grand jury indictment.

Jacobs To Speak At PTA Meeting

Fritz Jacobs, superintendent of Circleville Schools, will address the Nicholas Drive Parent Teacher Assn. 7:30 p. m. Thursday.

Jacobs will answer questions on the education system. Parents have submitted many of these inquiries. Additional queries from the floor will be accepted.

The purpose of the meeting is to acquaint parents with the goals and plans for education in Circleville.

County Ministerial Association To Meet

The Pickaway County Ministerial Association will meet 9:30 a.m. tomorrow at Pickaway Arms, E. Mound St.

Dr. Frank Moore will be guest speaker. His topic will be "The Minister's Health."

A discussion will also be held regarding, "The Minister, Hospital, Patient Relationship."

Coffee and rolls will be served. The Rev. Robert Wiley, president, urges all ministers in Pickaway County to attend.

Poor Readers Handicapped

'Retarded' Label Often Incorrect

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Too many children are considered "mentally retarded" only because they have not been taught how to read, a reading expert said today.

Gilbert B. Schiffman, supervisor of reading services in Baltimore County, Md., said early detection of reading difficulties can increase ten-fold a child's chances for a successful school career.

Schiffman spoke to the American Association of School Administrators and later expanded his views in an interview.

He said recent studies showed four out of five pupils in second grade remedial classes attained reading proficiency.

In junior and senior high schools, Schiffman said, only one out of 10 did, and there was a tendency for these youngsters to "slip back" when remedial instruction stopped.

Schiffman said that "as the non-reader goes through the primary grades, his problems multiply — he cannot solve the problems in arithmetic or social studies, even though he may have the skills to do so, because he cannot read the examination questions. The impression is one of general academic failure."

"He is likely to be considered as mentally retarded or as a lazy child. It is difficult to imagine a more chilling indictment of a confused child, bewildered by his inability to learn despite his earnest efforts to do so."

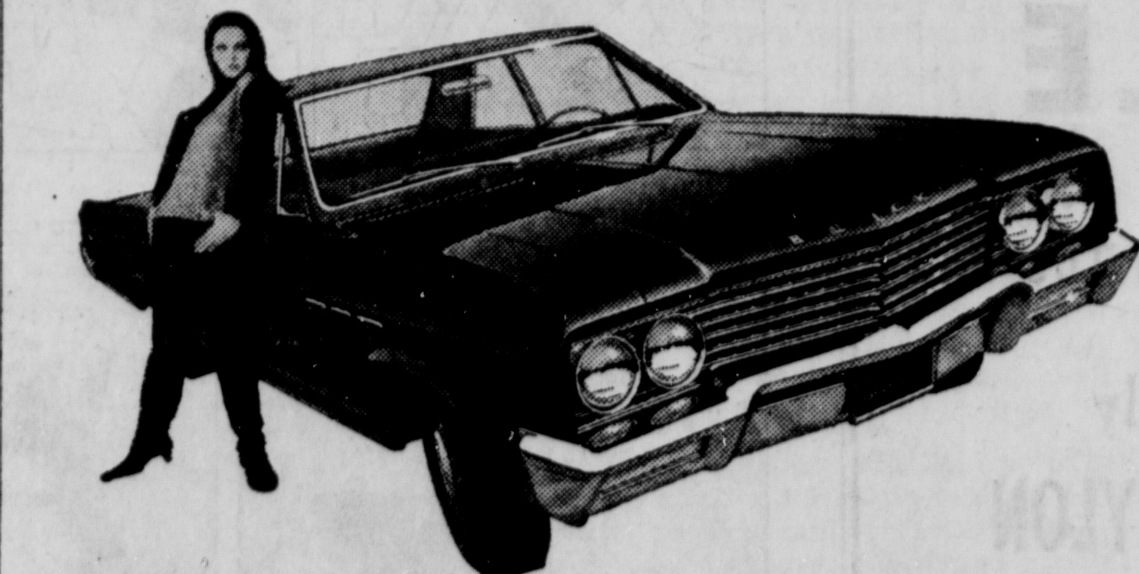

He said the non-reader develops an inner turmoil that causes him to become a major problem in the home and at school.

Schiffman said the only way to correct this is to identify the non-readers at an early age and give them corrective studies all during their school career.

Yankees Returned to Corregidor Just 20 Short Years Ago Today

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A doughty little general, who had led the first daring march into Manila and later was to lead the first occupation troops into Tokyo, commented with emotion as he stood on the bridge of the command ship:

"I wish General Wainwright could be here to see this. It would be the greatest sight of his life."

It was just 20 years ago today, American troops, by parachute and by landing craft, had just undertaken the reconquest of Corregidor, the fortress island astride the entrance to Manila Bay. It was a comeback that was almost forgotten.

Corregidor — A name that recalled memories of both bitter defeat and gallantry against hopeless odds.

Corregidor — The headquarters from which Gen. Douglas MacArthur set out for Australia by PT-boat with the promise to return.

Corregidor — The battered island when Gen. Jonathan Wainwright emerged from Malinta Hill's tunnels to surrender his emaciated, sick and bleeding force to the commander of the invading army.

Maj. Gen. William C. Chase, who had been given command of a division on nearby Bataan after leading a spearhead into Manila as brigade commander, remembered the sacrifice of Gen. Wainwright as he rode the command ship as an observer 20 years ago.

To the paratroopers and infantrymen landing on the island, there was no time for sentimental reflections. Corregidor might stand as a symbol to the generals and folks back home, but to them it was only another barren battleground on which many of them would die.

If a battle can fittingly be described as a spectacle, the reconquest of Corregidor was it.

Naval guns pounded the pollywog-shaped "Rock" the preceding day, then joined the bombers in blasting it again before the landing started. Aboard ships offshore, we had floating grandstand seats.

First came paratroopers of the 503rd Parachute Regiment. They landed atop the plateau "head" of the island, site of the old parade grounds and barracks. Varicolored parachutes dotted the "Rock" in spectacular patterns against the burned and scarred terrain. Some paratroopers landed on the steep cliffs; or in the water and had to be picked up by boats. But most of the force landed according to plan, trapping the Japanese in their caves and tunnels and proceeding to take their "topside" objectives.

Then came the landing craft from the Navy force offshore, carrying 24th Division troops to a narrow beach on which mines were planted like carrots in a garden. Within an hour, however, the first of the infantrymen set off a smoke flare to signal their arrival atop Malinta Hill, the midland peak of many tunnels — the tunnels where Americans had held out to the last in 1942 and in which hundreds of Japanese now remained as the Americans climbed the island.

Much cleanup fighting remained ahead, but the American grip on the island never was threatened. Hundreds of Japanese were killed later in caves and tunnels, or when they emerged from them.

The worst slaughter was an instance of mass suicide. The defenders set off a blast inside Malinta Hill which seemed to lift the hilltop and which carried several Americans to death under a rockslide at its base.

Cuyahoga Poll Board To Hire Ex-Policemen

CLEVELAND (AP) — In an attempt to stop possible voting irregularities in the future, the Cuyahoga County Election Board has hired two retiring police officers to set up a department of investigation.

The board Monday voted to hire Lt. Thomas White, 51, and Lt. Edward Mason, 52. The department will be expanded when the board hires six more men, said Ray T. Miller, board chairman. The board was plagued with a series of election irregularities last year and since has removed nearly 100 workers from the list of both workers.

If you take vitamins and still feel tired, your trouble may be due to iron-poor blood. Vitamins alone can't build up iron-poor blood. But GERITOL can! Because just two GERITOL tablets, or two tablespoons of liquid GERITOL, contain 7 vitamins plus twice the iron in 1-lb. of calves' liver.

In only one day GERITOL-iron is in your bloodstream beginning to carry strength and energy to every part of your body. Check with your doctor and if you've been feeling tired because of iron-poor blood, take GERITOL, liquid or tablets, every day. You'll feel stronger fast in just 7 days or money back from GERITOL.

*Due to iron deficiency
